THE R.H.S. ANNUAL STAFF KNOWS THE STUDENT BODY WILL APPRECIATE THE DISTINCTION GIVEN THE OWL IN PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S LETTER (ABOVE) AND HOPES THAT THE GOOD WISHES EXPRESSED WILL ENCOURAGE THE PUBLICATIONS STAFFS OF EAST AND WEST HIGH SCHOOLS TO CARRY ON.

Fiftieth Anniversary ..... "The

THIS YEAR 3400 STUDENTS WILL SAY FAREWELL TO THESE VINE-COVERED BUILDINGS.

Golden Year of Publication".....

FOREWORD ★

On April 15, 1890, Elmer Bruner, Vernon Hall, and Andrus Jones published the first issue of the Rockford High School Owl. From that first day to this, its fiftieth and last year, the Owl has been growing in national prominence as well as local prestige. Every change in the evolution of the school has brought a corresponding extension in the service of the Owl; thus its history nearly parallels that of the school. When the two important press associations began their critical surveys, the Owl proved its superiority to the nation by winning honors year after year.

The school itself furnishes the news sources which provide news for the paper to present in a readable manner. A newspaper has assignments, promotion, a social section, and persons on whom it can depend to make headline news; so has the school. In spite of these facts, some persons are inclined to feel that a newspaper is a small world in itself. The 1940 RHS Annual hopes to prove to them and the rest of its readers that the work of the RHS newspaper, the Owl, is very closely related to the life of the school.

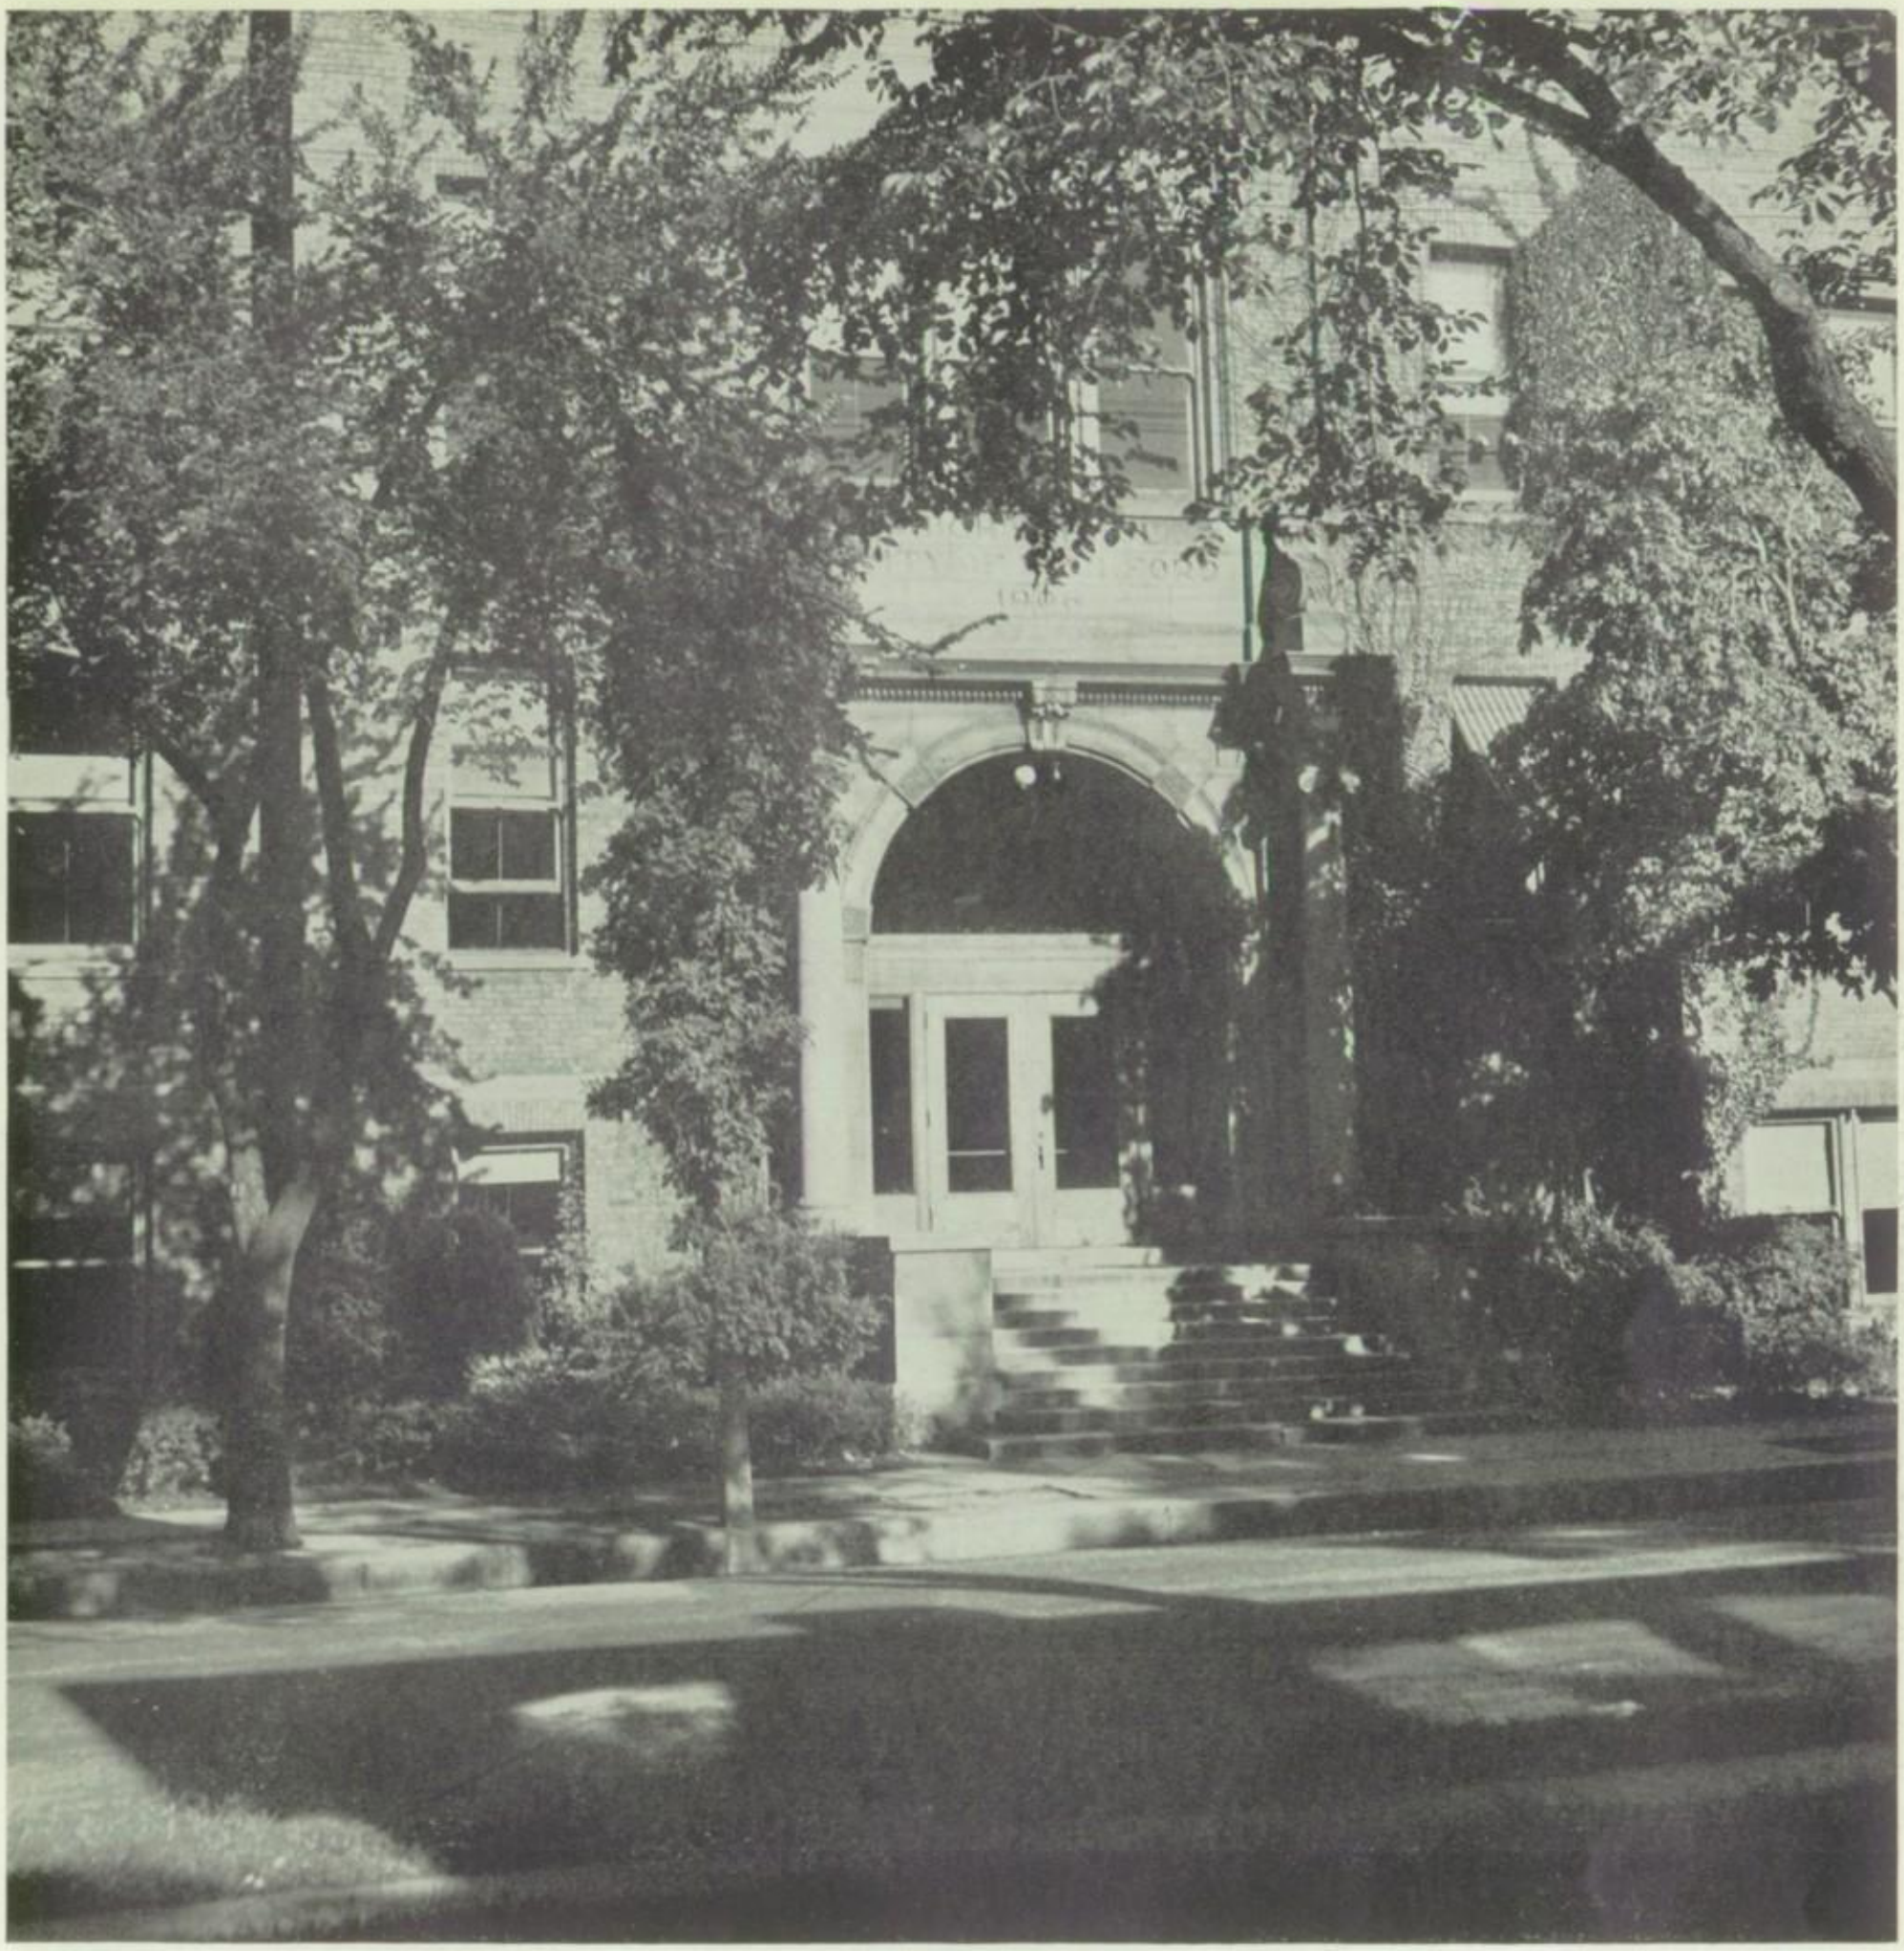
DEDICATION

In his nine years as coach of Rockford high school debate teams, Mr. John Burlend has done more than his share in making their record an enviable one. In contest after contest his able advice and careful coaching have been contributing factors in victory for his teams. Aspiring orators have also found Mr. Burlend's counsel inspiring.

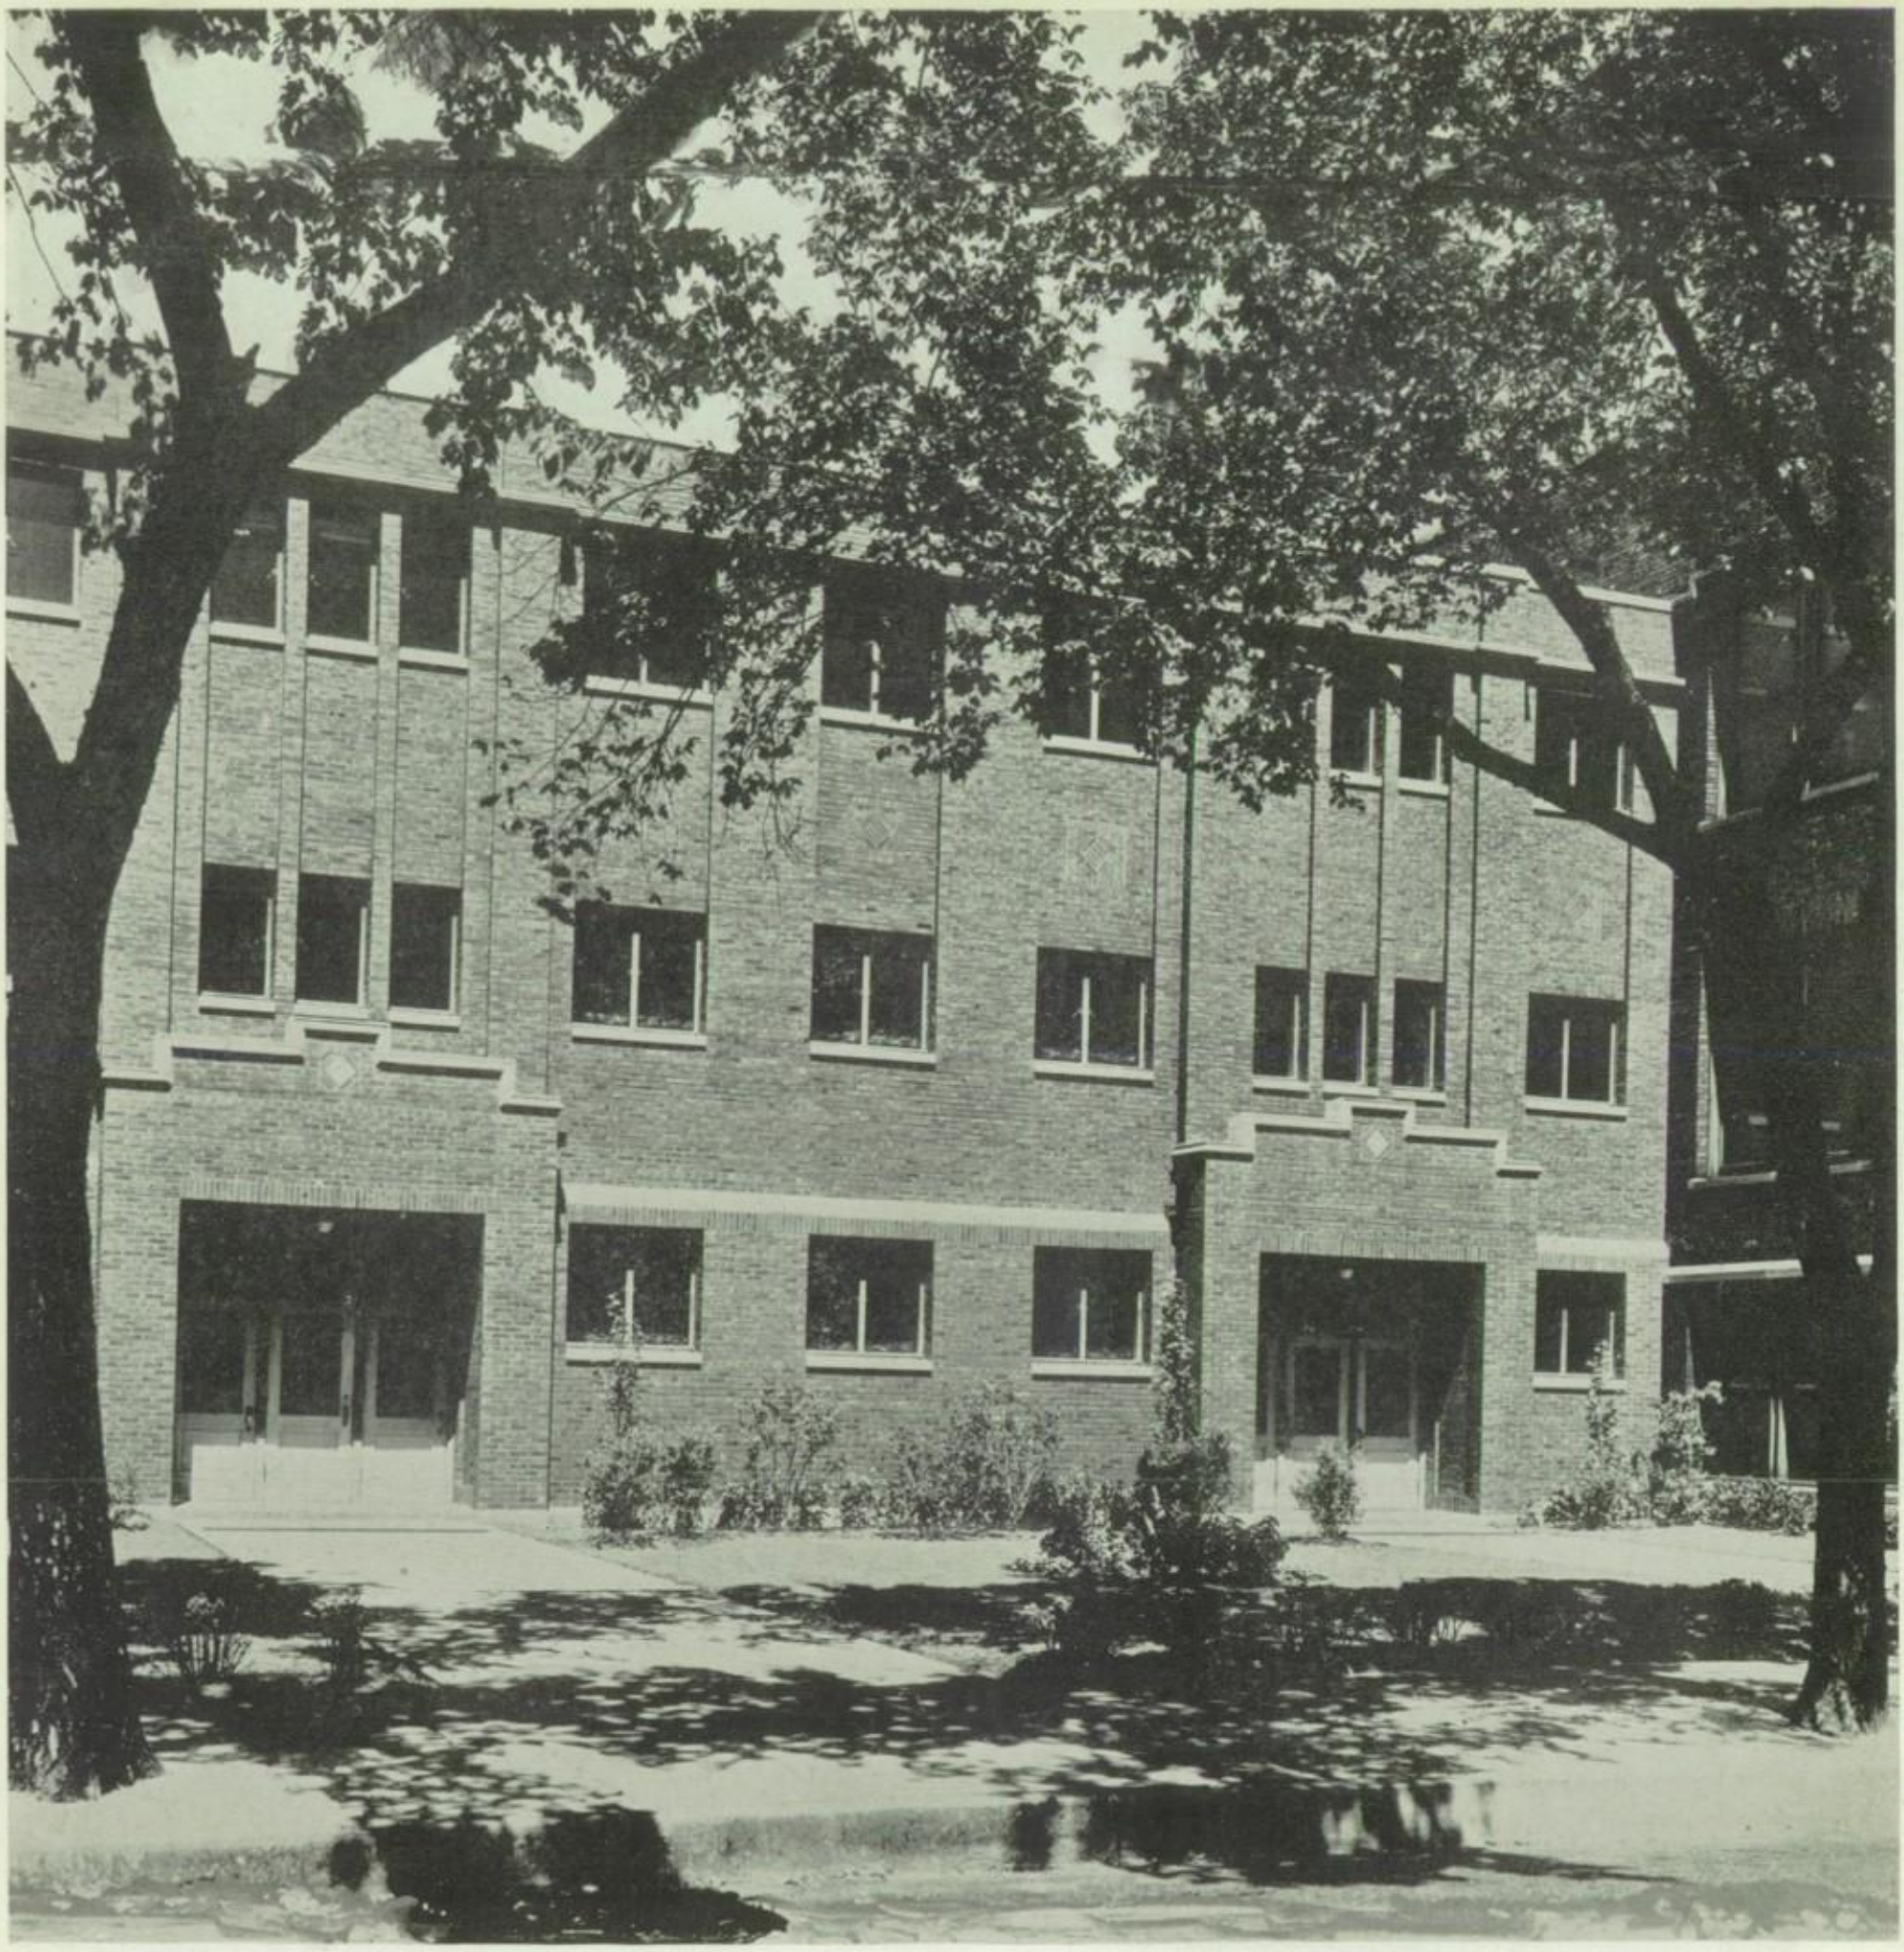
His comprehensive knowledge of the problems of the day and firm convictions as to means of alleviating them have won him the respect and admiration of all who have come in contact with him, either in his government classes or in community activities.

For these reasons, as well as for his good sense of humor and his willingness to enter into the spirit of the student, the staff has the honor of dedicating to Mr. Burlend this 1940 edition of the RHS Annual.

THESE picturesque iron gates guard the entrance between the two old buildings. Passing through them, one enters the hall which leads to Room 225, the office of the Rockford High School Owl and the RHS Annual, and Room 223, in which Miss Hazel Koch, Junior advisor, aids juniors in making out their electives and organizing their class.



PASSING under the inscription "High School, City of Rockford, 1906" over the arch of the main entrance, one enters the Middle Building. Housing the offices of the Principal, Deans of Boys and Girls, and the General Office, this building is the center of the school's administration. Here is also located the school's auditorium.



THE latest addition to the school building was constructed in order to furnish a link between the Middle and Administration Buildings. From the Administration Building, the destinies of the Rockford school system are guided, since it is there that the offices of Superintendent of Schools, Board of Education, and Supervisors are located.

HAVING kept watch over the Sophomore and Junior study halls for more than fifty years, the two old owls symbolize the knowledge for which RHS stands. Perched atop the vine-covered old buildings, the northernmost of which was the original Rockford Central high school, they have given the school paper its name.

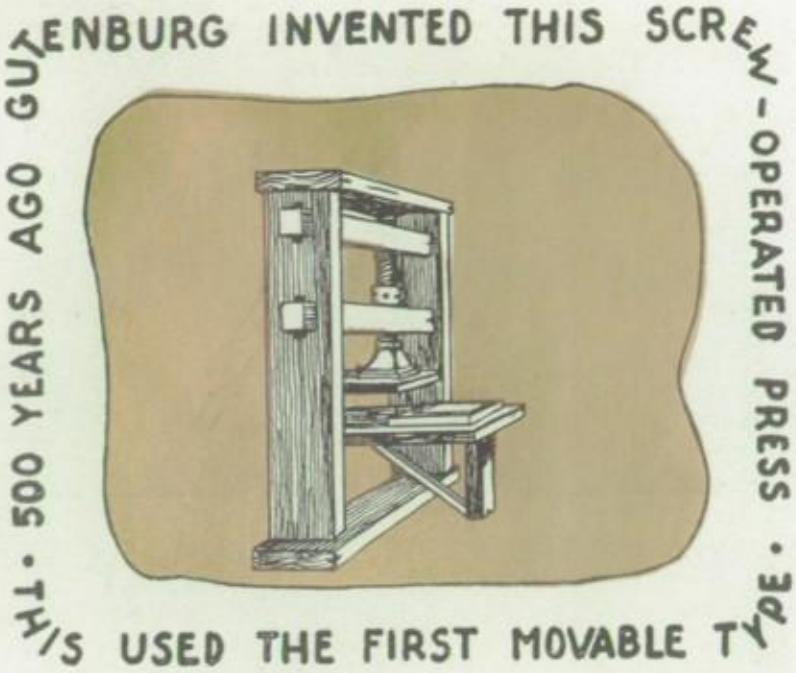
Editor Robert Ruhl, "Mail-Tribune," Medford, Oregon, winner of a 1934 Pulitzer award for journalism, edited the sports section of the 1898 Owl.

STRANGE, how some things stick in the mind. Although it is over 60 years ago, I remember as if it were yesterday, the day the editor of the Owl asked me if I would contribute an article entitled, "Why I prefer to be a Junior," and the pride I felt in that request. It was my first contribution to that now venerable publication. . . ."

The idea in general was to this effect: The Junior benefits by his experiences as a Freshman and Sophomore, yet unlike those of the Senior year must be clouded by the sense of the close of high school life. This, the Junior period, is the best period of all; one has benefited by the Freshman and Sophomoric periods, hasn't reached the final year, and therefore is in a position to get the maximum joy and profit out of life.

Robert Ruhl.



NEWS SOURCES ★

Since an editor or publisher must have news in order to have a newspaper, news sources are the first consideration in the publication of a paper. By a news source is meant any person or group of persons from whom information of general or specific interest may be obtained. When an editor sets out to publish a newspaper, he must have, first, a knowledge of these persons and groups in his territory; it is to these that he sends reporters.

The source of news is not limited to a few individuals, but extends throughout a whole community. The school community consists of the supervisors, board of education, faculty and classes. It is because of the prime necessity of these, the RHS news sources, that the first division of this book is devoted to them.

LAST fall when Rockford Senior high school opened its doors for the last time, it welcomed over five hundred new sophomores, thereby enrolling a total of 1012 first and second semester sophomores. The greatest number of these, 564, came from Lincoln Junior high school. From Roosevelt Junior high school came 398, from other schools, fifty.

The members of this year's sophomore class enjoy many different subjects, but their favorites are English and mathematics. Each of those received the majority votes of nine home rooms. Seven home rooms voted for physical education as their favorite subject, and six voted for science. Four have enjoyed history, and in two home rooms the boys chose shop while the girls liked sewing best.

One of the first things the groups did at the beginning of the first semester was to choose their home room officers. These consist of a president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. When these officers were chosen last September, home room 60 elected Robert Grindle, Carl Gustafson, Ann Gulotto, and June Gustafson. Room 364 elected Lois Hammond, president, and Betty Henderson, vice-president. Officers chosen by 307 were John Picken, Rose Peel, Mary Jane Pierce, and Donald Pearson. Room 321 chose Bill Norton, Roy Norrlander, Mary Odorski, and William Nash. In Room 228 the officers were Gail Derr, Hilma Johnson, Jaqueline Dixon, and Ann Cuccia, while in Room 404 they were Stuart Rasmussen, Gilbert Rickert, Dick Ramer, and Betty Roos.

THE only officer elected by Room 212 was the president, who is Bob Hogg. Wayne Fehler was elected president of Room 243. The other officers are Louise Dal Nogare, vice-president; William Franzen, secretary; and Don Fitzpatrick, treasurer. In 122, the election results were Elaine Hummel, president; Lois Key, vice-president; George Knight, secretary; and Marion Pixler, treasurer. Room 245 elected as president and treasurer Ted Conrad and Harriett Johnson, respectively. Tommy Gumbrell has been president of Room 305, and the other officers were Beryl Gustafson, vice-president; Barbara Grant, secretary; and Bob Graff, treasurer. The outcome of the election in Room 343 was as follows: President, DeWitt Bennett; Vice-President, June Boettcher; and Secretary, Stanley Bergquist.

Julius Tronske, Augustina Tassoni, Iris Nelson, and Jeanette Swenson have been serving their home room, 208, as officers, as have Irwin Sampson, Warren Skeels, Phyllis Samson, and Violet Schlee in the library. The officers who were elected by Room 141 are Geraldine Pearson, president; Carlo Paternostro, secretary; and Jim Retsinas, treasurer. Home room LLR has been under the direction of Lloyd Anderson, president; Italo Callaci, vice-president; Raymond Cacciatore, secretary; and Desmond Johnson, treasurer. The results of the election in 225 were for president, Priscilla Johnson; vice-president, Sylvia Kreuter; and secretary, Vernie Lindstrom.

UPON their arrival at Rockford Senior high school, the members of each new Sophomore class find an opportunity to participate in various activities. This year's class has outstanding representatives in many fields, including music, debate, ROTC, publications work, and sports.

Debate has appealed to Carl Bain, Marion Swanstrom, Roger Garst, and Ruth Dent, who have proved active in this line of activity. ROTC is a field which has attracted many of the boys. William Skorburg, Joe Olson, Paul Meyers, Thomas Nevin, and Carl Nelson have showed interest in this subject. Others who have done work in ROTC are George Nagus, William Nash, Bill Nicholas, Wayne Carlson, Russell Rew, Gilbert Rickert, and Frank Rowley, Bob Carlin, Carl Bain, Clifford Wylie, Bob Hogg, Don Pearson, Ernest Petrauskas, Tom Green, Donald Olson, Glen Oldenburger, John Muller, Donald Martinson, Vernie Lindstrom, John Hassell, William Ward, Karl Wheat, Ted Fagerburg, Jack Brophy, John Manning, and Harold Matthews have also been on the military training roster.

Ten sophomores have offered their services in publications work. Elizabeth Barkey, Helene Carpenter, Joan Anderson, Eunice Brees, Pauline Peterson, Janice Wallin, and Evelyn Schwanke are Sophomore girls who have been writing stories for the Owl. DeWitt (Benny) Bennett is a sports writer and Donald Olson has also achieved an important place on the staff. Joyce Plummer is a member of the Owl advertising staff.

ANOTHER important activity in which almost every home room has a representative is the student council. Florence Shaver, Gordon Smith, Marcelle Kjellstrom, Donald Carlson, William Nash, Joe DiMario, Joan Root, and Jack Carbery have served as student council representatives from their home rooms. Others who have held membership in this organization are Jacqueline Arnold, Janice Wallin, Evelyn Schwanke, Betty Jackson, Jean Picken, Dewey Reum, Joan Anderson, Donald Murphy, Edward Makulec, Arthur Anderson, Anthony Kuchinsky, Jean Jones, James Hancock, Pat Crandall, Tom Tolmie, Leona Youngquist, Donald Fehler, Vito Defay, Jack Brophy, and Betty Lucas.

The field of sports has attracted both boys and girls. Ruth Winquist is captain of the Sophomore GAA. Other members are Judy Howard, Roberta Jacobson, Betty Jean Neufield, Phyllis Jugo, Gloria Hutchins, Doris Kosian, Mary Edith Howard, Dorothy Anderson, Mary Cederquist, Agnes Clancy, Frances Carafotias, and Lucille Peterson. Boys who are taking part in sports are Tony Manne, Arlow Drewelow, Frank Vinci, Julius Tronske, Carl Lee, George Holloway, Edward LaForge, and Eugene Benton. Others who have proved their interest in sports by participation in this activity are Gordon Logan, Albert Marinelli, Aurelio Mastrangeli, Kent Moberg, David Harding, Joe Grazioli, Robert Peterson, Dick Murray, Gene Kleindl, Ward Kircher, Albert Carlson, Bob Stites, Cary Stephenson, Jack Olson, Leonard Puidick, Bill Deschaine, and Arister Carmichael.

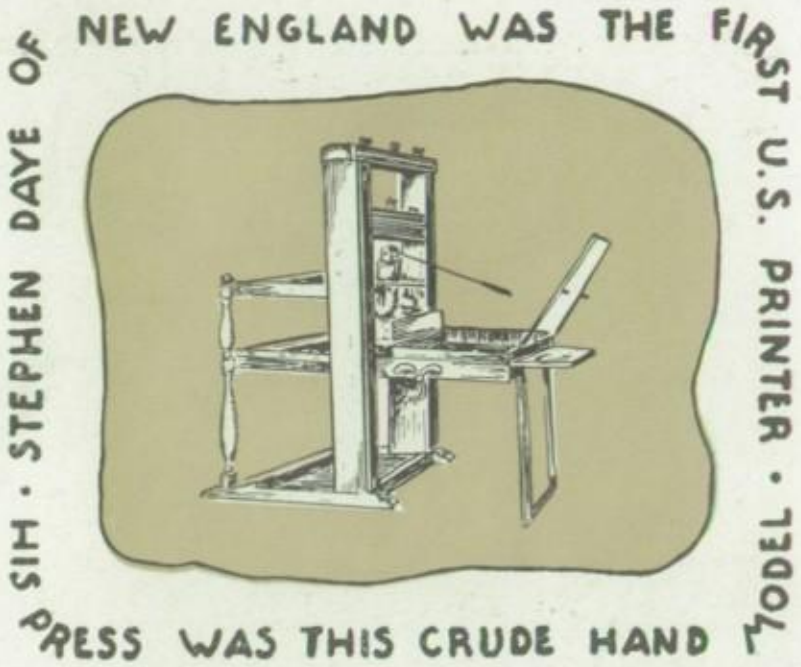
THE band, orchestra, and vocal groups appeal to many students interested in music. Students have named Robert Setterstrom, Joyce Schmeling, Marshal Wiley, and Reka Potgieter as outstanding members of the orchestra. John Haegg, Kathryn Ramberg, Beth Corbridge, Sam Castree, Sara Ann Capace, and Bob Carlin are also active in orchestral work. The Sophomore class is also well represented in the band. Some of the members of this organization are Robert Gregory, Francis Hoernecke, Owen Hutchinson, Stanton Hyer, Warren Ryan, Donald Carpenter, Arnold Zetterberg, Carl Barger, and Karl Conart.

Many of the members of the Sophomore class are interested in singing which is proved by their membership in vocal groups. Helen Clarke, Anisten Carmichael, Richard Buchanan, and Mary Lynn have obtained places among the choristers, as have Stuart Rasmussen, Betty Rogers, Dorothy Ball, and Vincent Coffaro. Several other sophomores are participating in these various musical organizations. They are Tommy Gumbrell, Everett Hayes, Beryl Gustafson, Bill Wachob, Maurice Lighthart, Carole Pagnolone, Helen Larson, June Boettcher, Shirley Marcellus, Bill North, Miriam Nyman, Gordon Logan, Paul McIlwain, Fred Hubbell, Shirley Dietzman, Donald Brown, Jack Brophy, Mary Lamb, Betty Lucas, Beverly Landgren, Ruth Dent, Don Nyman, Paul Meyers, Roy Norrlander, John Olson, Bill Glenny, Margery Abegg, Janet Smith, Marcelle Kjellstrom, Bob Williams, Virginia Stewart, and Beatrice Peterson.

Dr. Franklin Snyder, now President of Northwestern University, was associate editor of the 1901 Owl.

"I KNOW what I mean, and I don't propose to leave this crowd in doubt." So spoke Abraham Lincoln eighty years ago; and in these words he summarized with characteristic simplicity the chief end of either speaking or writing. A young man who has learned successfully to communicate his own ideas to another person has acquired a habit which will stand him in good stead in whatever he does—in school, in business, in society. And I know of no better training in "putting over" ideas than that which comes from participation in the work of school publications . . . Alertness, accuracy, conciseness—these are qualities which journalistic experience should help one acquire; and a high school publication department which builds these qualities into the members of its staff has more than justified its existence.

Franklyn B. Snyder



ASSIGNMENTS ★

In the language of the newspaper, an assignment is an order to a reporter to get the facts of a story and present them on or before a certain set time, the "deadline." After an editor is sure that he has sources from wnich to obtain news, he is ready to assemble a staff and assign his reporters to regular "beats," definite territory the reporter is to cover, or to special news events.

A school also has assignments, and it is as necessary for students to meet the deadlines for handing in their lessons as it is for newspaper men to meet their deadlines. The organizations of both schools and newspapers are divided into departments, each with a head whose duty it is to plan the work of the department. These departments are the subject of this second division.

ENGLISH

Each year members of Miss Obye's newswriting classes spend two weeks in intensive newspaper study, and at the end of this period they speak to Composition II classes about various phases of newspaper work. The newswriting students addressing Miss John's class in the picture above are Lucy Mae McAllister and Henry Broquist.

Elanie Wieryea (left), Orrin Sandy, Rosella Cuplin, Carl Meyer, and Regina Dal Santo (right), students in Mrs. Vincent's Reading class, are shown at right checking the reading lists that they have made. The primary purpose of the lists is to give other persons an idea as to which books appeal most to student readers.

During the year the ABL club has made many reports and projects pertinent to the work of the English Department. Active members of the club, who are shown examining a set of recordings of famous actors, are (left to right) Elizabeth Wing, Marcia Nelson, Martha Butler, Betty June Johnson, Betty Jean Minard, and Virginia Larson.

ENGLISH

A poster contest which was sponsored by the ABL club during book week was won by Alice E. Carlson and Margaret Danielsen, shown holding their prize-winning poster (center). Doris Magnuson (left) placed second, with Mildred Field, third. The posters were designed to show that it is possible to travel by reading.

Georgiana Carmichael (left), Robert Buchanan, Beatrice Carlson, Carl Defay, and William Crawford (right), students in Miss Beatty's Composition II class, are shown at work on the magazine study which is part of the course. During this study the students read articles which correlate with their English work and also study propaganda analysis, using the magazines as examples.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

"What can the schools do to promote democracy?" was the subject of a panel discussion in Miss Ledger's Modern History class. Arthur Jensen (left) was the chairman of the discussion with Robert Braisted speaking on the present school curriculum and Paul Cary (right) proposing new methods for training students in democracy.

The picture at the right was taken as Assistant State's Attorney Max Weston was addressing a group of government students in one of a series of special assemblies. These assemblies were the result of a cooperative effort of the government classes to have those in public life give practical advice and information to students.

At the end of the first semester Miss FraiPont's U. S. History classes conducted a current events quiz program. The questions were drawn up by the classes and selected by chairmen. Harriett Ryan is shown drawing a question from Russell Evans while Eileen Singer (left), Phyllis Stark, Walter Zawlocki, Burnell Lindberg, and Joe Aquilone (right) wait their turns.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

During their study of early American life, members of Mr. Miller's United States History class made projects illustrative of colonial customs and dress. Among the persons who made projects were Russell Malveg (left), Selmer Wiig, William Schmidts, who constructed a model log cabin interior; Leo Byrne, and Janice Fennel (right).

American Education week exhibit sponsored by the social science department, displaying books and magazines of current interest, had as its purpose showing that democracy depends on the people's ability to read and discuss intelligently, then to act. Among those shown observing the exhibit are Bob Millard, Nancy Pearman, David Driesbach, Doris Englof, and Robert Carpenter.

At right, students of Miss Dobyns' sociology class are shown listening to a panel discussion on the effect on society of women in industry. The persons who participated in the discussion are (left to right) Loreto Manis, Mavis Carley; Martha Butler, chairman; Darryl Kasper; and Mary Reola. During the discussion women's wages were compared with men's.

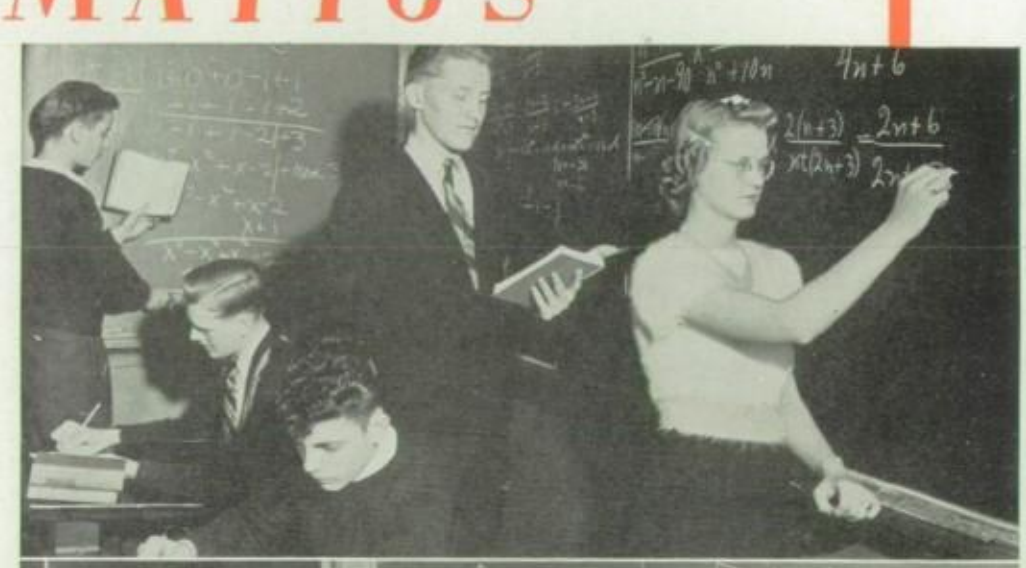
The aim of Algebra III is to help the student to understand and analyze relationships he has already studied in earlier algebra courses. In the picture at right, taken in Miss Peterson's class, John Palm (left), Dick Yahrmarkt, and Lorraine Strand are solving several examples at the board while Gordon Bildahl and Harry Dickas work at their desks.

Geometry III is an extension of the geometry course which includes solid, or three dimensional figures, such as cones, cylinders, and spheres. At right, Betty Brown is explaining the proof of a theorem to the other members of Miss Peterson's solid geometry class as Betty Joy Kelly and Robert Wilking prepare the figure for another proof.



SCIENCE

Desiring an object lesson in the applications of the laws of stresses and strains, Mr. Hanson, physics instructor, designed the crane which is shown at the right. The students who are studying the crane are (left to right) Betty Joy Kelly, William Joslyn, Fay Larson, and Clifford Kleindl.

Music appreciation gives the student an opportunity to study the background and theme of music, as well as the lives of composers of the classical, romantic, and modern schools. At right, Lloyd Istad and Annette Slive are listening to a recording, while Beatrice Peterson (left) and Betty Nordvall analyze a composition being played by Helen Larson.

ART

Listening to various types of music, students of Miss Dentler's Art III class were able to interpret the rhythms into original designs. In the picture above, Clyde Saltzgiver is posting several of these designs while Betty Jean Sanders and DeVere Barraclough make use of the phonograph to form new interpretations.

Among the many types of art projects made in the commercial art class, under the direction of Miss Dentler, are numerous posters advertising most of the important school events. At right Elsie Salberg is copying a poster for the Junior play as Evert Shostrom (left), Marjorie Commer, and Dick Myrland design and examine other posters.

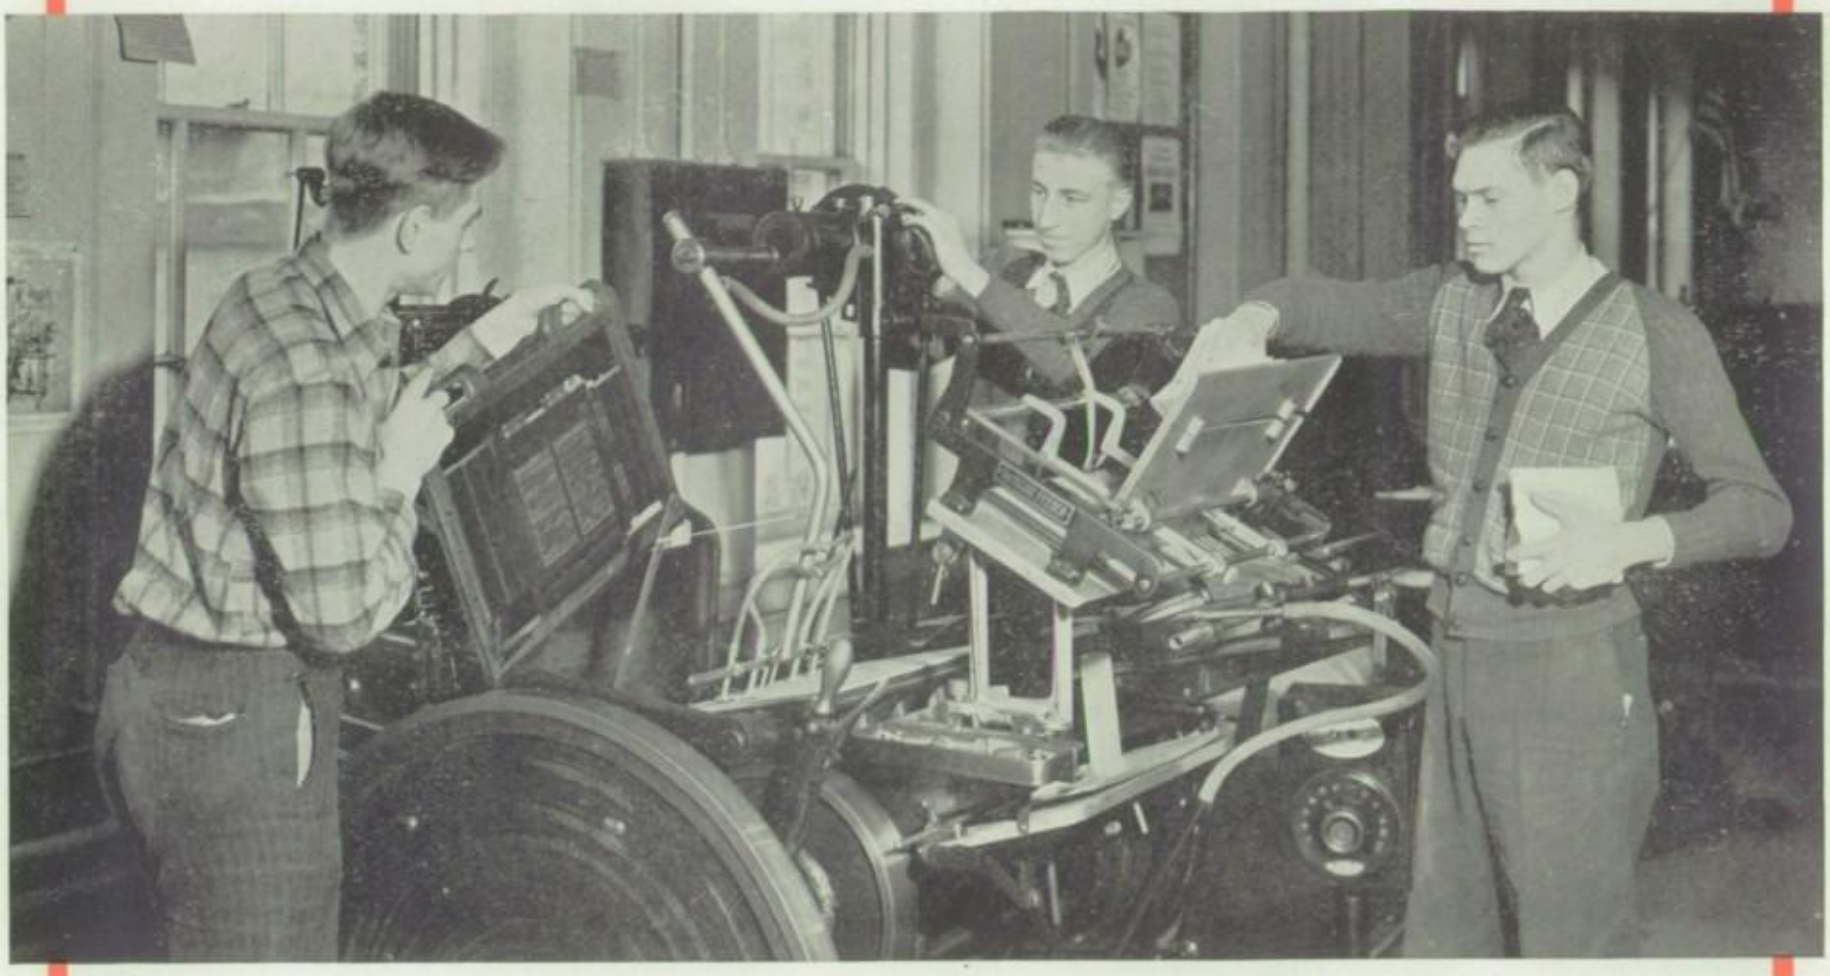
The flags which were used in the salute to the Big Seven were made by the girls of the home economics department. In Miss Holmin's Clothing I class, Charlotte Rosenquist (left) and Lucille Townsend are sewing the flag for West Aurora while Mary Deschaine, Marjorie Wade, Katherine Gagliano, and Gloria Macchi (right) are working on others.

The Everyday Living course was organized to give boys an opportunity to study the values of foods and to gain practical experience in the preparation of meals. The members of Miss Ralston's Everyday Living class who are shown making French toast are (left to right) Robert Loyson, Harry Van Aken, Robert Wood, Jack Miller, and Robert Knight.



INDUSTRIAL

Much of the printing for the Rockford school system, done in the school print shop, is handled by members of Mr. Berg's printing classes. The above picture shows Wayne Minnett (left) putting a plate into the press, while James Mackey and Earl Hirth (right) adjust the paper and feeder.

Early in the year mechanical drawing classes designed drawing desks. Their plans were sent to the cabinet shop, where classes under the direction of Mr. Klampe followed them out. Shown at right putting the finishing touches on one of these desks are (left to right) William Rubin, Roger Anderson, Richard Nordberg, Jack Olson, and Frank Rever.

Rockford Senior high merchandising course is the first of its kind to be established in Illinois. Directed by Miss Judkins, it will be used as a pattern for similar programs elsewhere in the state. Warner Johnson (left) is shown demonstrating selling methods to Glen Gunther, Bob Knight, Eleanor Thomas, and Bill Hickey, members of the class.

Using an actual cash register, Don Lindroth is demonstrating to the rest of the class the correct use of this machine. This new course, based on a federal act passed in 1936, is open to postgraduate students and is designed to provide training for persons who are employed in the field of merchandising or service.

Merchandising students must be employed equivalent to the time spent in the classroom. They thus gain knowledge from actual experience, supplemented by class work supervised by Miss Judkins. Demonstrating at the counter are (left to right) Virginia Kittle, Shirley Smith, Shirley Earngey, Mavis Lindstrom, and Helen Henderson.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Helen Mathre (left), Margaret Custer, Arlene Wickham, and Constance White (right), are shown with the projects they made while they were in Miss Scandroli's French I class. Among the projects are a doll which represents a French peasant, a notebook in French on the months of the year, a French flag, and a guillotine.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Since the dribbling done in basketball is one of the most important factors in making the game interesting, it is especially stressed in the boys' gym classes during their study of the game. As Mr. Beyer prepares to discuss dribbling methods, these members of a 10B class are engaging in a relay.

The girls who have formed the circle at the right are (clockwise) Barbara Salisbury, Sally Wibinski, Janet Abrahamson, Isla Anderson, Beverly Pederson, and Phyllis Dickmann, members of Miss Currier's Swimming III class. Swimming III, or advanced swimming, is open to any girls who, having taken two semesters of swimming, swim well and enjoy the sport.

In the home nursing course girls study first aid and other phases of housekeeping. The girls who are shown above demonstrating several operations in the care of a baby are (left to right) Mary Knudson, Emma Bianchi, Dorothy Phillips, and Phyllis Stark, who are members of Miss Agnew's class.

These students are taking the tuberculosis tests given yearly to students in Rockford Senior high by the Rockford health department. William Nash and Joseph Olson are being given the test by Dr. William J. Bryan; Miss Josephine Kelley, nurse; and by Kathryn Gagliano, a student, who assisted in giving the tests to students.

MILITARY

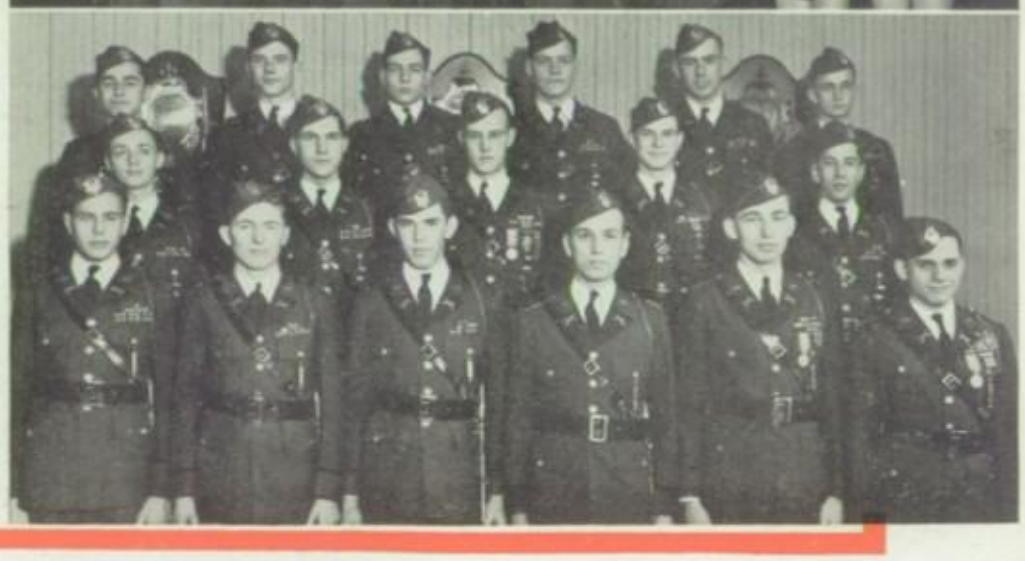
On the night of the first semester competitive drill, the ROTC battalion presented Major Haggart with a plaque in remembrance of his two and one-half years as its director. The picture above was taken as Captain Adjutant Burdette Douglass presented the plaque to Major Haggart. Sergeant Smith, assistant PMS&T, is looking on.

So that they will be able to march properly at the head of the battalion when it appears in parades, the sponsors are subjected to a certain amount of drilling. Second semester sponsors, shown practicing a military salute, are (left to right) Nancy Pearman, Pat Wing, Marion Swanstrom, Joan Perkins, Jane Stanbery, and Pat Hall.



The 1940 cadet major, selected by the directors of the unit to head the battalion, was Clifford Blackwell; his assistant, the captain adjutant, was Robert Millard. Other commissioned officers were (top row) Anast, Day, Butler, Early, Arendsee, Roos; (middle row) Conde, Miller, Dolan, Stephens, Bendes; (front row) Floden, Ives, Blackwell, Millard, McGinnis, and Welsh.

MILITARY

As soon as the weather permits, the ROTC boys go outside to practice drill and exercise routines. The picture above shows members of Company C on the drill field south of the school building. Among the boys shown stacking arms are Gene Shattuck, Donald Carlson, and William Nash.

At a farewell dinner held after the competitive drill, Major Haggart was honored by the commissioned ROTC officers. Seated at the speakers' table were (left to right) Sergeant Smith, Mrs. Smith, Major Haggart, Mrs. Haggart, and Cadet Major William Sterling. The program consisted of a talk by Major Haggart and toasts by all who attended.

Although the rifle team seldom leaves its home range, it has won many honors by sending scores to national judges. In its matches the Rockford team has consistently ranked above many college teams. Shown examining a rifle bolt so that they will better understand a rifle's construction are Gilbert Nelson (left), Richard Dolan, and Gene Stevens (right).

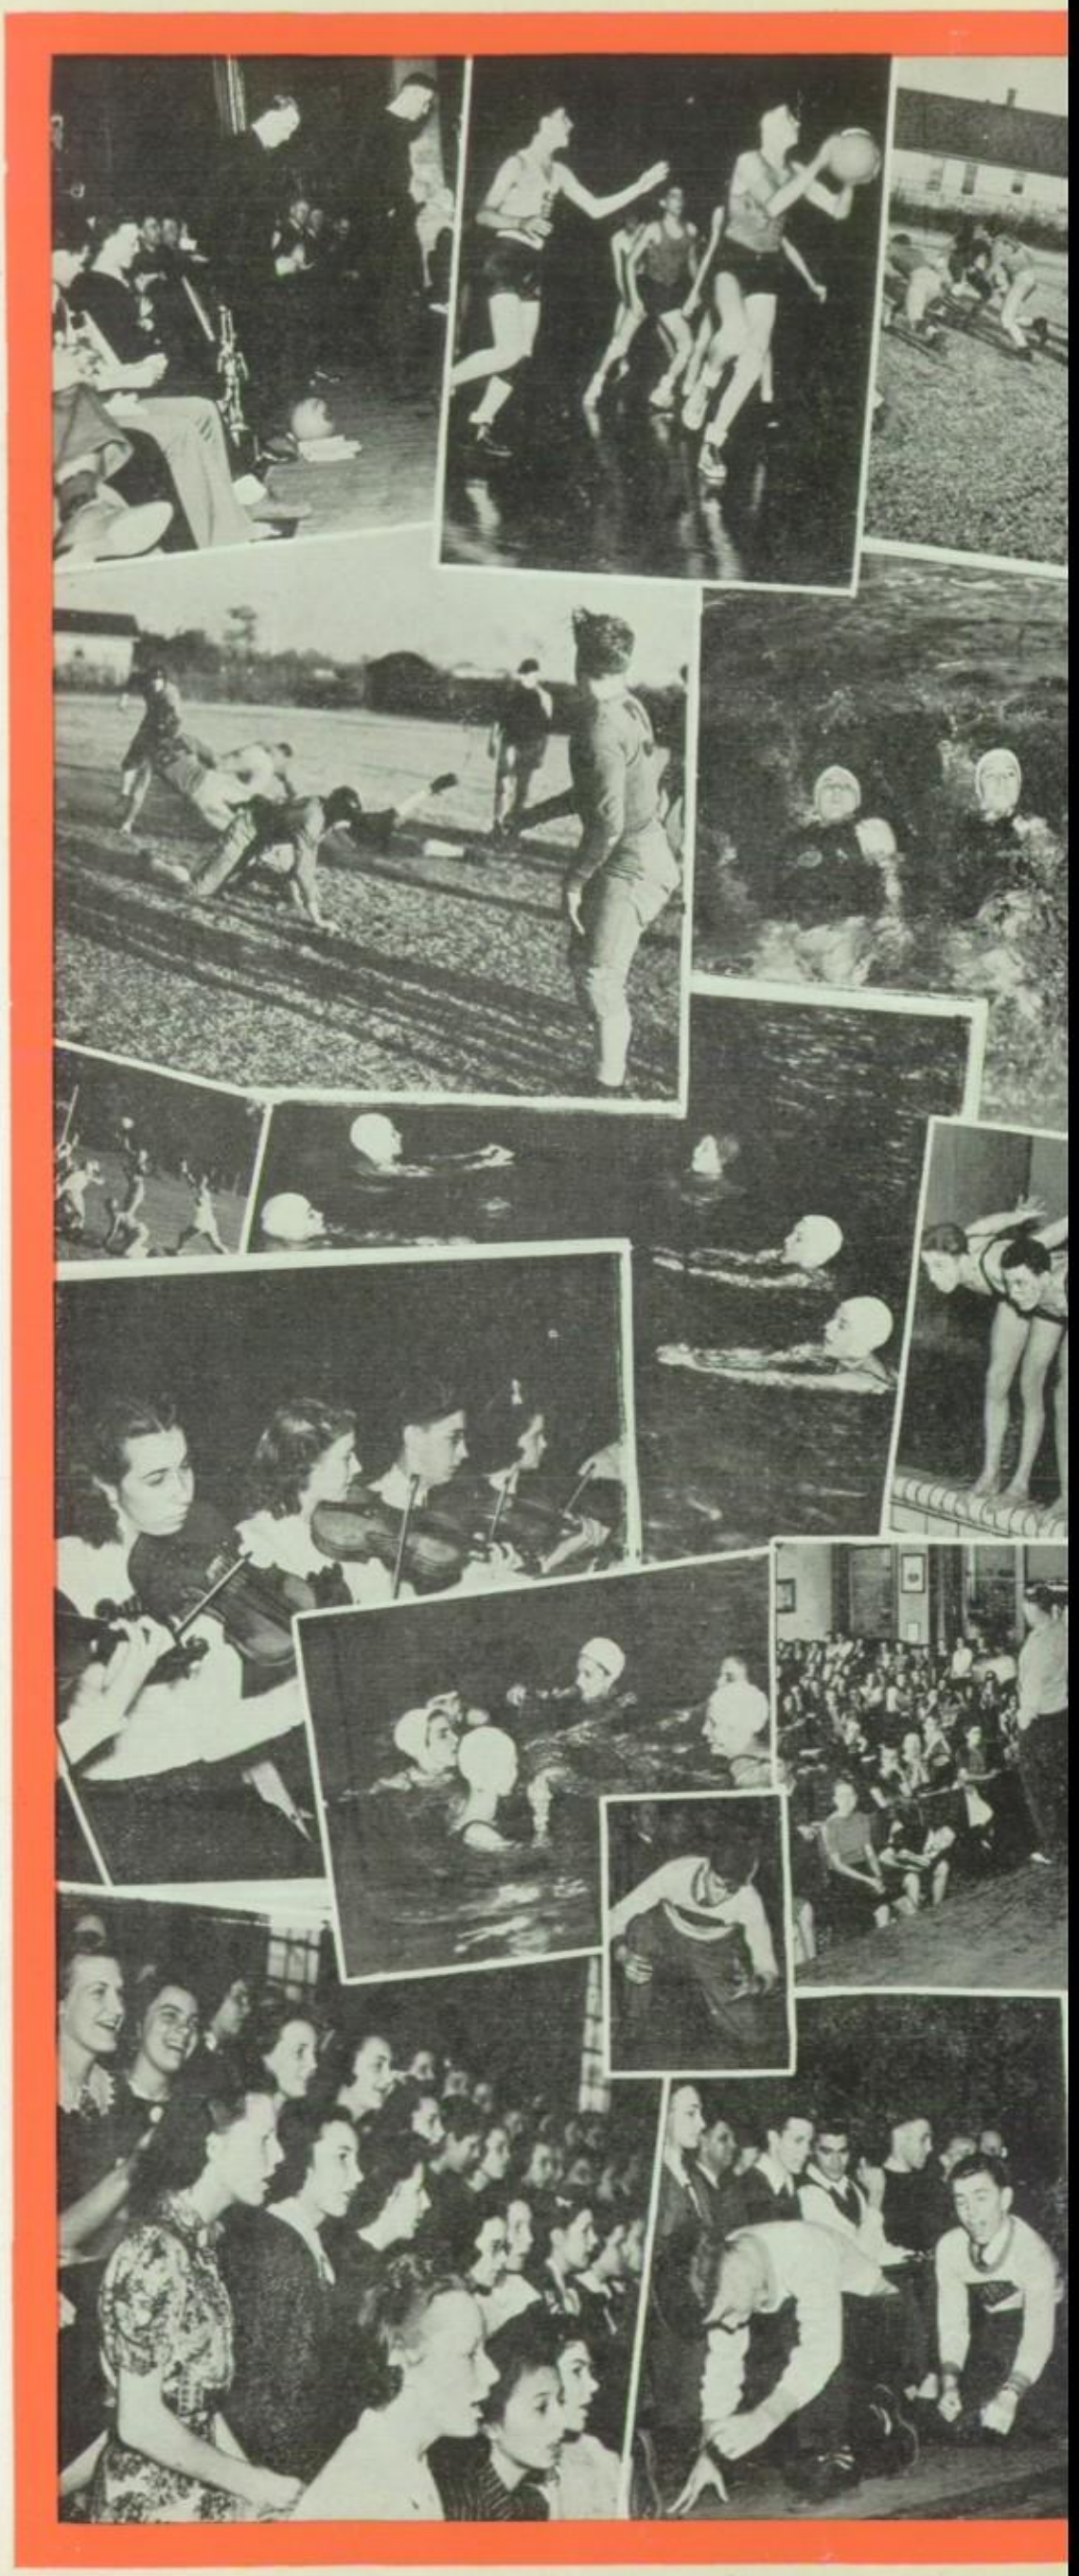
After firing a match, the scores are totaled by the members. RHS teams have won three Hearst trophies and have been champions more often than any other team in the Sixth Corps area. Team members who are shown at right checking their scores are (left to right) Richard Welsh, Richard Miner, Robert Blomquist, Howard McGinnis, Dale, Conde, and Gordon Logan.

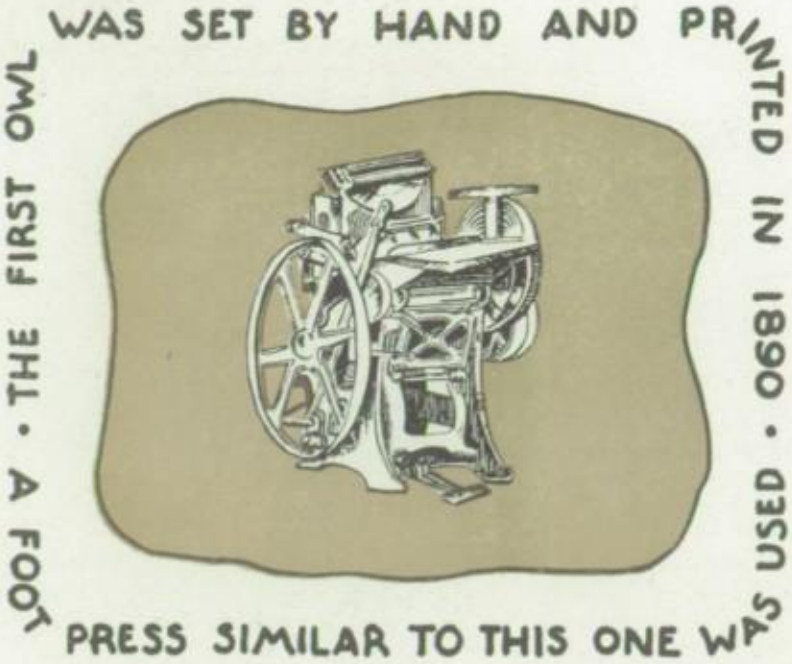
Now Managing Editor of the American Boy magazine, Mr. Franklin Reck edited the Owl in 1914.

WHEN I worked on the RHS Owl it was a monthly magazine with a red cover. I remember in the fall, how bravely the staff started out, fully resolved to put freshness into every page. . . . Our headlines were smart, our articles bright, our paragraphs keen. Unfortunately, we fell from gace. By May we filled valuable space with themes from English classes. Our heads had a certain familiarity. Our new stories were cursory. . . . We didn't quite hold to our high resolves, but we had fun.

I'm sure that my work on the Owl gave me a love of the written word that finally forced me into journalism. . . . Since then I've had fun writing books, editing, interviewing interesting people. I owe most of my satisfaction to those fine days at Rockford high—days full of new experiences, worth-while training, and high ambition.

Franklin M. Reck





PROMOTION ★

The duty of the promotion department of a newspaper is to create an interest in the paper and thus build up the subscription list. The material value of the promotion department comes from the fact that the major consideration in the sale of advertising is circulation. Thus, if the promotion department is efficient, the business staff will be better able to finance the paper through the sale of advertising. The intangible benefit from an effective promotion staff is the good-will it creates.

A school's promotion staff consists of those students who come in contact with the outside community—through athletic contests, concerts, publications, or plays. Since it is they who prove to the people of the city that the school and its activities are worthy of their support, this third division concerns them.

R. H. S. ANNUAL

Several phases of Annual organization are in progress in the picture below. Elizabeth Brearley and Margaret Paulson (left) are checking and identifying photographs preparatory to sending them to the engravers. Carolyn Erickson (center) is typing writeups of the various GAA activities for her section of that work. Jeanne Stickels (standing at right) was in charge of the club section copy. She is pictured discussing dummy drawings for that section with Stanton Olson (right) who also wrote for club copy. Later Jeanne Stickels also supervised the honor section write-ups with Esther Sumner as her assistant.

One of the most important features of the Annual is the individual photographs of members of the Senior and Junior classes. Behind those pages, however, there are many files to be kept, appointments to be made, lists to be typed, and deadlines to be made. After the pictures have been taken, the work on them continues for they are checked for imperfections, sorted, and alphabetized for panels for the engravers. (At left above) Marcia Nelson and Lillian Heins are shown making an appointment for Lucy Mae McAllister, publications cashier for two years.

For nearly half a century the Annual has been a part of the school life of Rockford high school. As the school developed, so the year book developed with it. Progressing from a paper pamphlet of 28 pages with the class roster and yell to a full-sized book, it recorded all phases of school play and work for permanent keeping. Beginning at a time when the graduating class could be photographed in one picture, it has enlarged itself until there are now fifty-eight pages devoted to seniors alone.

ACTIVITIES

Publication staffs in 1939-40 were headed by (left to right) Gladys Wallin, circulation manager; Burton Johnson, business manager; Ray Goetz, Owl associate editor; Richard Conklin, Annual editor; Burdette Douglass, Owl editor; and Elizabeth Wing, Annual associate editor.

Caught in characteristic pose, this picture presents members of the Owl feature staff who are (left to right) Adelyn Goodell, Helene Carpenter, and Donald Olson. From time to time assignments on the history of the school fell due, at which time back copies of the Owl were consulted. Subjects ranging from hayfever masks to the clock's effect on students are included in the feature assignments. Through the ingenuity of the writer, many articles have ben printed which have proved enjoyable and witty. Features are selected for their timeliness, as for example, March suggests wind; February 29, leap year; and holidays, festivity.

Pictured at the right are a group of circulation staff members whose main duty it is to place the copies of the Owl into the hands of the subscribers on Friday morning. Another duty is that of folding the many copies of the Owl on every Thursday evening after Mr. Sullivan, printing instructor, with the aid of his printing classes, has printed the copies of the school paper. Some of the circulation staff, headed by Gladys Wallin, circulation manager, shown in this picture are Marjorie Wade (seated), (left to right) Pauline Peterson, Rachel Johnson, Lowell Branning, Janet Olson, and Ruth Kjellstrom.

At the end of the first semester, a temporary editing staff appointed to replace the editor and associate editor consisted of Don Olson, Bill Mackey, and Betty Nordvall.

Owl and Annual staff members attended the Big Seven at LaSalle-Peru, the Medill at Northwestern University, the Illinois High School Press Association at Urbana, and the National Scholastic Press Association at Chicago. RHS publications contestants in 1939 won second place at the Medill Press conference, and second rating from the Columbia and the National Scholastic Press Associations.

R. H. S. FORENSIC

On Saturday, December 10, Rockford was host to an invitational tournament at which the winners debated over WROK. Shown in the studio at this time is the Rockford affirmative team, composed of Janet Anderson (left) and Ruth Meier, who was taken ill later in the season and had to be replaced by Robert Day. At this invitational tournament, both Rockford teams tied with Dundee debaters for a perfect day's record. This year the question was "Resolved: that there should be government ownership of the railroads." In conference debates, Rockford, for the fourth straight year, finished in second place.

During this year, about twenty-eight students have been active in debate in Rockford high school. The teams have participated in one hundred and twenty-eight debates. In the Wheaton Invitational Tournament, Rockford won seven contests and lost three, to finish in fourth place out of twenty-eight schools. Both the first and second teams engaged in debates at Augustana. The district tournament was held at DeKalb, after which victorious teams participated in the state tournament at Champaign. For the past three years, Rockford has taken part in the state tournament.

Established in September of 1918 by Mr. June Bornor, the Rockford High School orchestra is one of the oldest organizations of the high school. Mr. Bornor has been conductor of that musical organization since that time. Members of the orchestra play during the intermission of the Junior and Senior class plays. Acting as accompanist for the high school operetta is another assignment the orchestra fills.

Along with the band and vocal groups of the school, the orchestra played for the annual Christmas assembly at the Armory this year. The proceeds from the assembly went into a fund for the purpose of buying another electric organ for one of the new high schools.

An impressive part of an assembly sponsored by the orchestra this year was the lowering of the Rockford High School red and black banner while the orchestra played Taps, symbolizing the division of Rockford High School into East and West High. Another public appearance of the high school's orchestra was at a Kiwanis club meeting.

DON CHRISTOPHERSEN ..... President
DICK BORNOR ..... Vice-President
PRISCILLA EATON ..... Secretary
EUGENE ROOS ..... Treasurer

Each year the orchestra sponsors a banquet for its members. This is usually a costume party, last year's being a pioneer party for which members dressed as Indians, Pilgrims, or in other colonial costumes. A "Get-Acquainted" Party is also given by the orchestra the first of the year for the purpose of mixing new and old members. This party is held in the orchestra room, and the members dance and have refreshments.

Like the high school band, the orchestra is divided into two groups, the concert orchestra and the secondary orchestra. When a vacancy in the concert orchestra appears, a member from the secondary orchestra fills the position.

A number of orchestra members went to Urbana this year to play in the All-State Orchestra. Dick Bornor gained first chair in the bass section. Other members who appeared in the orchestra from Rockford High School were Dick Kjellstrom, Bill Sterling, Dorothy Carlson, Richard Johnson, Dorothy Glomp, Jean Skantz, Harriett Spongberg, Wesley Carlson, Roger Storm, and Lawrence Hoffman.

It took the Rockford High School quite a number of years to find out what was lacking to improve the intangible thing called "school spirit." An interclass organization where juniors and seniors rubbed shoulders together for a common purpose was needed.

Therefore early in May, 1907, a mass meeting of those interested in forming a band was held. Of this number nineteen were chosen and given instruments. The boys met in the old Ellis school for practice every Monday evening under the leadership of Mr. John T. Haight.

This organization was the first high school band in the United States. The first instruments were obtained through the borrowing of three hundred dollars. After playing at a few public concerts, the band was able to liquidate the debt as well as buy new uniforms, red coats, and caps. Mr. George Roper presented the band members with red capes. When the Barber-Colman Band broke up, the instruments and stands were donated to the school band. Private donations were also received.

(Back row) Norlander, Dunberg, Keltner, Glenny, Magnuson. (Fifth row) Bargren, Strote, Shostrom, Meleng, Payne, Stenberg, Gregerson, Elliott. To serve the boy, the school, the community, musically, is the purpose of the Rockford High School band. To carry out this purpose requires hours of practice on the part of the band members as well as the present director, Mr. Allen Elmquist.

Classed as the outstanding program of the year was the annual concert which was closely followed by the band dance. This year the band has made a total of forty-six appearances upon such occasions as parades, football games, and basketball games. The hardest assignment of the year is the football season, requiring several hours of practice a week in addition to the every morning session in the band room between nine and ten o'clock.

The band members practice before and after school and sometimes, in order to perfect formations, they must report at 6:30 in the morning. When an election was held to determine the most outstanding February graduates in the band, Ray Essington, John Dewey, Evert Shostrom, Dick Yahrmarkt, and John Blough were chosen.

Because Mrs. Sarena Dunton Bolender, a former music instructor of Rockford High School, knew of many beautiful chorals written for A Cappella singing, she desired that there should be a club in the school where such music could be used. She, therefore, organized the Rockford High School A Cappella Choir in 1930.

Mr. Linden J. Lundstrom, the present director of the A Cappella Choir, is a charter member of the organization. Miss Lucille Mathre, a teacher at Roosevelt Junior High School, was also a member of the choir in its beginning.

The A Cappella Choir always sings for the National Honor Society assembly and the commencement exercises. Participation in the annual Christmas program is another event of the choir's calendar.

Arlene Dahlquist, Marilyn Muth, Margaret Price, Dorothy Best, Joyce Dost, and Phyllis Hannan were selected to go to sing in the all-state chorus. Eleanor Johnson, David Furgason, Robert Larson, Richard Greene, Paul Gustafson, George Driesbach, and Harry Carlson were also members of the group who participated in the All-State concert.

Treble Clef club was founded in 1931 by Mrs. Sarena Dunton Bolender, instructor, so that the students who were in the overflow of the Girls Glee club could have an opportunity to meet and sing as a group. Club members have participated ever since in the annual operettas, Christmas programs, and spring festivals.

The name of the Treble Clef club was derived from the fact that the girls sing only in the treble or G clef. Any girl who meets the requirements of this club is eligible to become a member. The requirements are as follows: the applicant must have a good singing voice, and the ability to stay on pitch, to carry a part, and to read music.

To strive to promote a musical interest in the girls is the purpose of the Treble Clef club. By being a member of this club, a girl has the opportunity to entertain others with delightful music and to enjoy music herself after graduation. Every Monday and Thursday sixth hour the club meets with Mr. Linden Lundstrom, music instructor, in room 363B.

Bearing the name of Frank LaForge, a native of Rockford who is a composer, pianist, and the vocal instructor of the well-known Lawrence Tibbett, is the La Forge Glee club of Rockford High School.

Since Mrs. Sarena Dunton Bolender, former music instructor, found that there were many capable girls who could not become members of the other musical organizations because of the number limitation, she formed the LaForge Glee club in 1937. This club has been so popular that it has been found necessary to have try-outs in the Junior high schools, as well as the Senior, to find which prospective members are most capable of staying on pitch and carrying a tune.

After membership has been obtained, these students prepare to present their programs which are given during the year, such as caroling in the halls at Christmas time and singing in the spring and winter concerts. Routine meetings, which are held two days a week during the school periods, are spent in practicing three-part selections for public appearances.

In September, 1934, the school's fifth musical organization for music enthusiasts, the Junior Glee club, was organized with the purpose of giving capable girls an opportunity in voice training and experience in part singing due to overcrowded conditions in the Treble Clef and Girls Glee clubs. The club consisted of twenty-three charter members led by Mrs. Sarena Dunton Bolender, music instructor.

In order to be eligible, the girls must have the ability to sing part songs, and appear whenever the club sings for retention of membership.

The Junior Glee club appeared in assemblies contributing to the school life of Rockford High. Among the other programs that the club has participated in are the Christmas program, and the January and Spring concerts. As an annual custom, the members take part in singing carols throughout the corridors during the week before Christmas.

Outstanding members of the Junior Glee club, who have shown musical ability and club interest are Kerstine Schelin, Dorothy Stanton, Leona Youngquist, and Miriam Applequist.

All male leads for the spring operetta are furnished by the Boys Glee club. The club, composed of male voices, weave into song all the moods known to man. Because Miss Florence Ely, instructor, found that boys enjoyed singing male choral material, she founded the Boys Glee club in 1921. The club regularly provides music for the commencement and baccalaureate services, the Christmas concert, and assemblies.

In order to become a member, a student must have a good voice and must show ability in singing parts in male chorus music.

Exceptional ability is discovered in the school through this club, and often members continue their vocal work. To illustrate this: John Key, a former member of the club, last year won a music scholarship to Carthage College.

Some outstanding members of the club are Millard Mathre and David Furgason, who last November went to the University of Illinois to participate in the All-State Chorus.

The club members meet every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon sixth hour with Miss Catherine Needham as the director in charge.

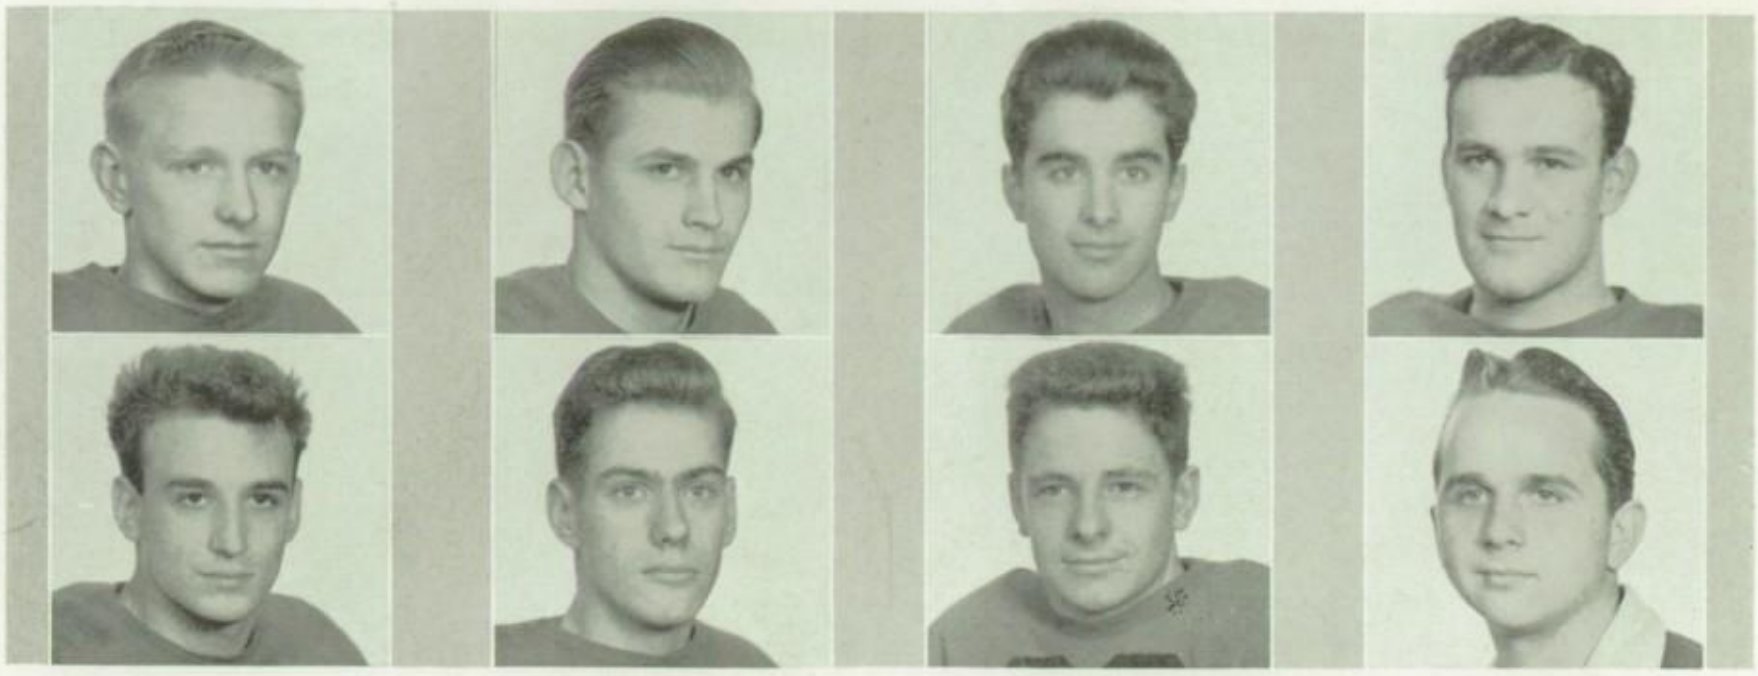
In 1915 Mrs. Edward M. Pierce, music instructor, founded the Girls Glee club of Rockford high school. The purpose of the club is to give the girls an opportunity to become acquainted with treble music.

During the Yuletide season, the club combined with other musical organizations of the school and presented Christmas assemblies at the Armory. The concerts were given December 19 in the morning for the students and in the evening for parents and other patrons. At this season these groups also pass through the school corridors singing well-known carols.

Application for membership in the Girls Glee club is not limited. Any girl may become a member who has passed her tryout before the director of the club. The requirements are that she must have a good singing voice and the ability to sing part songs.

Patricia Hall, Arlene Dahlquist, Irene Lutzhoff, Marilyn Muth, and Adelyn Nelson proved outstanding in musical ability.

The Girls Glee club meets every Monday and Wednesday sixth hour with Miss Needham, music instructor and director.



An excellent defensive end, Bob Gustafson smeared many enemy plays.

Fleet-footed Frank Vella, halfback, gained by open field running.

Ralph Williford, guard, won the praise of coaches, opponents, and fans.

Big and rugged, Keith Mulford was a bulwark in the Rockford line.

A fierce blocker, Dominic DiMarzio was a valuable asset to the team.

A valuable utility man, Don Patton knew both the guard positions well.

Always on the alert, Lawrence Rerolie, quarterback, backed up the line.

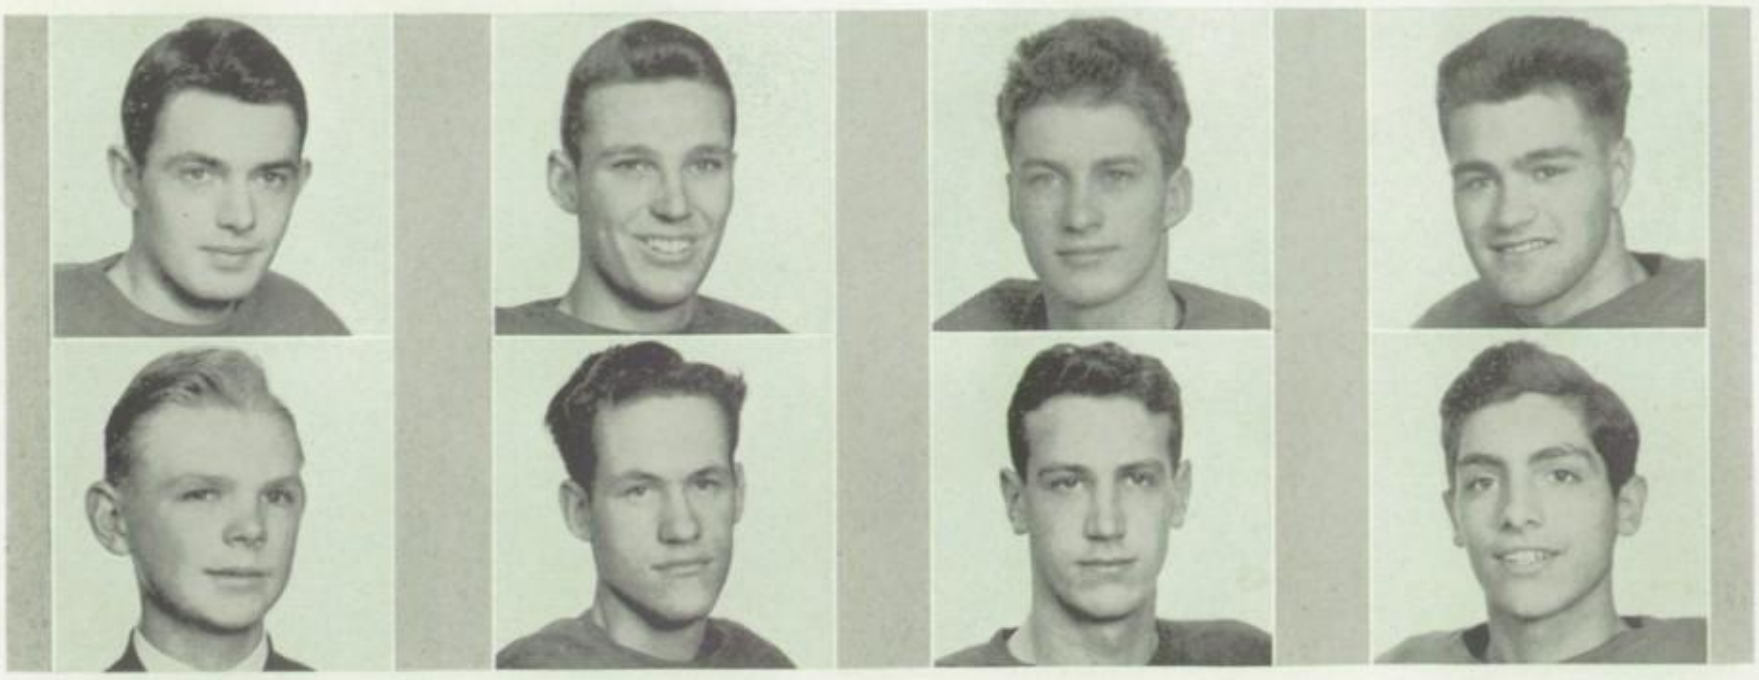
Harold Larson, manager, was always on the spot with necessary equipment.

1939 HEAVIES WIN 3

During the 1939 football season Coach Lowell Spurgeon's heavyweight team won three games, lost four, and tied one, ending in sixth place in the conference standings.

To open the season the Rabs upset a favored Schurz squad from Chicago 9-6 in a home game, September 22. In their second home game September 29 they defeated Dixon's heavies 14-0. The first conference game of the season and the four-hundredth Rockford high school heavyweight football game, October 6, ended in defeat for a traditional rival, Freeport, 12-0.

An opponent takes the ball around end.



Receiving All-State recognition, Campbell Perks captained the Rabs.

Medical manager, Donald Larson, was well-liked and efficient.

Fast LeRoy Wilson's catlike agility won him a place on the team.

Few could equal Warren Tresemer in thoroughness at the tackle post.

Bill Seidelmann, fullback, gained recognition with fine all-round play.

Eugene Van De Walker was always a dangerous man at the end position.

Frank Alonzo, halfback, passed, kicked, and ran equally well.

At center, Joe Buscemi inspired his teammates by his sportsmanship.

TIE LAST RHS GAME

In the first of two out of town games West Aurora defeated the Rabs, 19-0, on October 13. The Rockford gridders also lost the second game to Joliet, October 27, by a score of 6-0.

On November 3 a home game was lost to LaSalle-Peru, 21-0. The last home game for Rockford Senior high was against East Aurora on November 10, and was dropped by a score of 6-0.

For the final game of the season the Rabs traveled to Elgin, November 17, and there they tied the Maroons, 6-6.

The Rabs attempt to block a high punt.

Albert E. Marinelli

Maurice Lindquist, quarterback, always gave a creditable showing.

Another of the Rablets' aggressive backs was Angelo Salvi.

First string center, Albert Marinelli, was in on many plays.

Battling hard, Roy Gustafson finished the season as regular guard.

Dependability was responsible for LaVerne Anderson's success as a manager.

Bernard Chirvinski, end, was always fighting to win the games.

As alternate center, Carlo Falzone saw much active service.

A substitute back, Millard McEntee had courage and drive.

RABLETS PLACE FOURTH

At the end of the 1939 football season, Coach James Laude's lightweight squad had won two games, lost five, and tied one, finishing fourth in conference competition. The first two home games being non-conference play gave the inexperienced Rablets, captained by Joe Triolo, an opportunity to gain experience before the regular season set in. September 22 they held the much heavier reserves from Carl Shurz high of Chicago to a 6-0 score, and the game with Dixon on September 29 resulted in a 0-0 tie.

Bob Rosecrance receives advice from Coach Laude.

At the tackle position, Captain Joe Triolo was an inspiring player.

Known throughout the conference for his pass-catching was Bob Wood.

Paul Wiley always gave a creditable performance as a tackle.

Philip Guagliardo, left halfback, was the star passer on the team.

Eugene Magnuson, hold-over guard, played a stellar role in the line.

Mallory Mitchell always played an excellent game in the guard position.

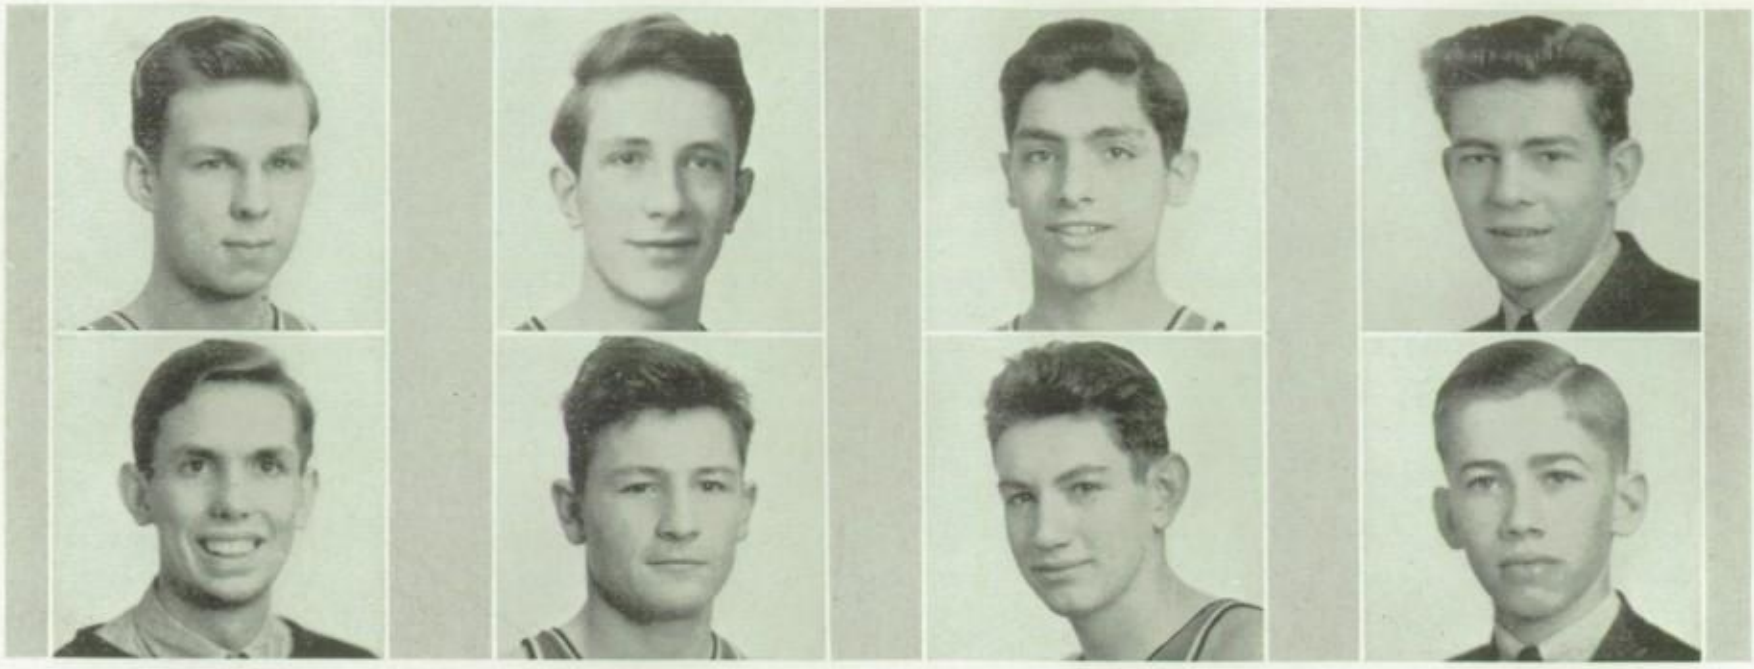
Robert Rosecrance, back, had many opportunities to show his merit.

A mid-season find, Paul Fazio, back, was a good ball handler.

WIN OVER FREEPORT

On October 6 the ponies outclassed Freeport by a score of 12-6. Although beaten, 6-0, by West Aurora on October 13 in the first of two out of town games, they came back to win over Joliet, 7-0, on October 20. The Rablets dropped home games on November 3 and November 10, being defeated by LaSalle-Peru, 16-12, and East Aurora, 7-0, on those dates. For their last game of the season the Rockford team went to Elgin on November 17 and held the unscored-upon Elgin lights 13-0.

Joe Coniglio and Paul Fazio practice the kickoff.



Reserve center and forward Al Adamitis was always eager to play.

George Vosburgh provided plenty of competition for first-string members.

Although a reserve, Joe Buscemi fought hard for a regular position.

As basketball manager, Merrill Butler proved a great help to the coach.

Another able assistant to care for routine matters was Jim Morgan.

Although he played little, Dan Salvi gained valuable experience.

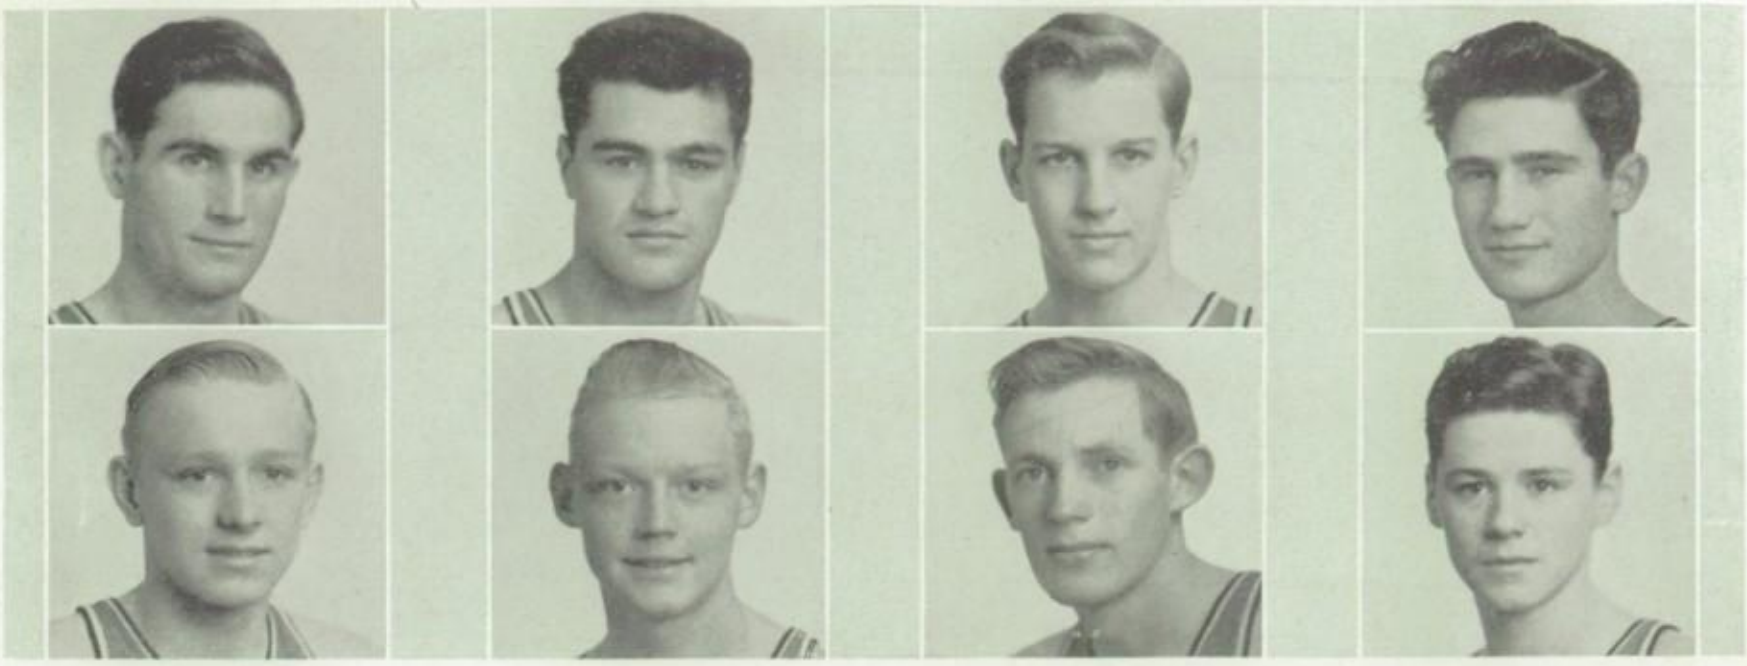
Bernhard Lundberg put up a good fight for a heavyweight position.

Robert Carlson assumed many responsibilities as heavyweight manager.

RAB CAGERS TAKE 13

With only two men from his 1939 state championship team returning, Coach James Laude was able to build up a fairly successful heavyweight basketball quintet. Playing twenty-one games, the Rabs won thirteen and ended in fifth place in the conference. In their first two games of the season, the Rockford heavies emerged victorious over Sterling, 35-33 and East Aurora, 47-38. After dropping two to Belvidere, 28-24; and Joliet, 37-34, the Rabs came back to beat West Aurora, 34-29. On January 5 an inspired Rockford team overwhelmed LaSalle-Peru, 60-29. The Rabs lost to Elgin, 32-25; then rallied to defeat Belvidere, 41-26.

Alonzo dribbles down the floor for a basket.



Eagle-eyed Captain Eugene Speck was an able leader for the Rabs.

Bob Gustafson saw to it that no regular forward had his place cinched.

All-conference guard, Frank Alonzo played a hard and accurate game.

Great expectations are held for Julius Tronske, sophomore guard.

At forward and guard positions Victor Anucauskas was outstanding.

At the center position, Carl Lee always played a clean, hard game.

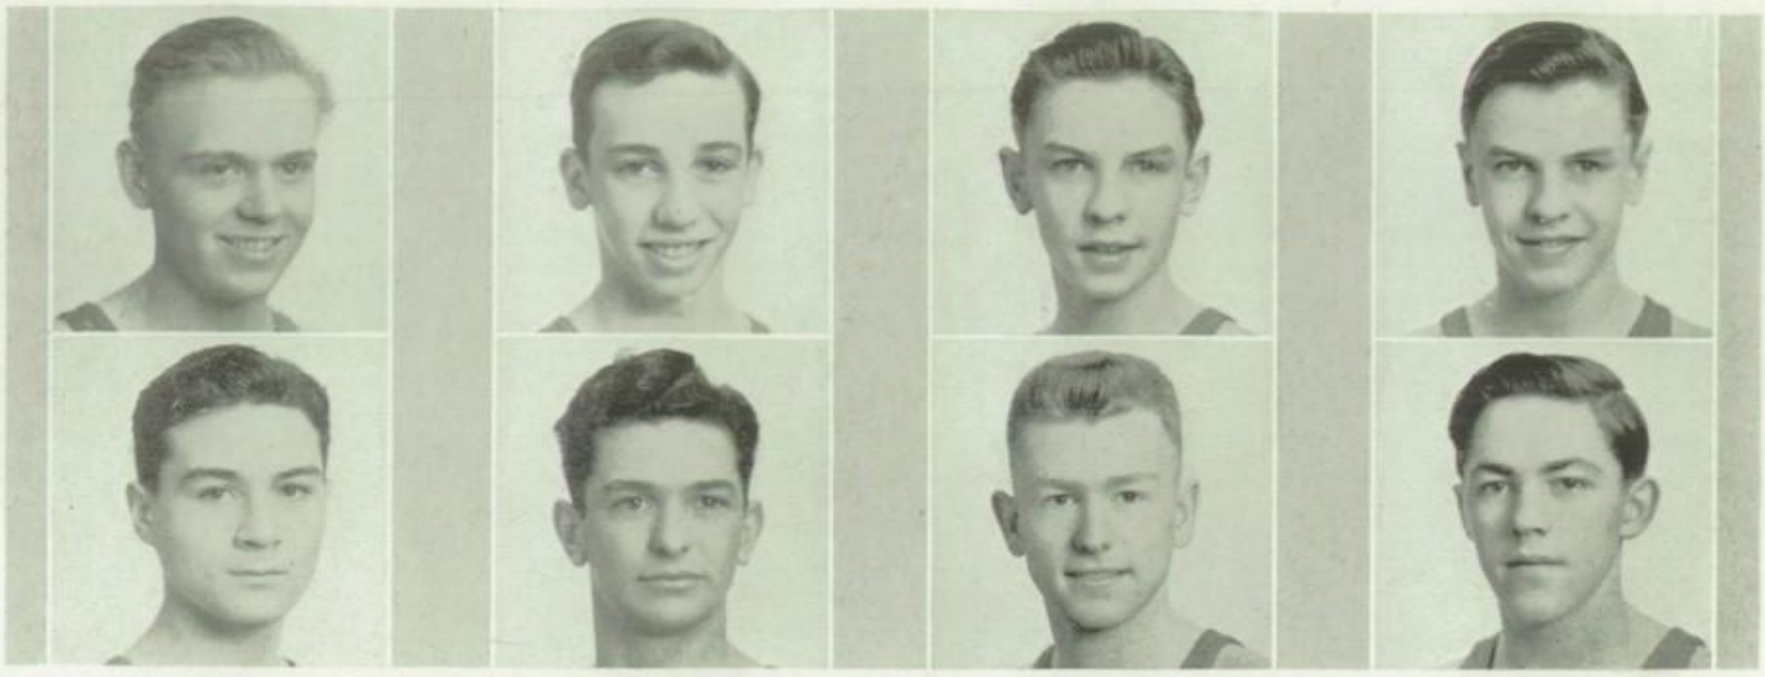
In tournament competition, Jim Flood proved how well he could play.

All-round ability won for Bob Wood a post with the Majors.

WIN REGIONAL CROWN

Games against Freeport and East Aurora fell by scores of 41-36 and 38-29. Rockford's hopes rose as the Rabs took games from Joliet, 37-32; and West Aurora, 30-19; but sank with a loss to LaSalle, 44-37. Making a third of their shots, the Rabs beat Elgin, 41-33, but on February 23 Freeport stopped them, 26-23. Conquering Marengo, 55-20; Monroe Center, 51-21; and Belvidere, 46-24; the Rabs copped the Belvidere regional crown. Rockford's title defense continued with district tournament victories over Dixon, 34-24; and Oregon, 48-20, but was abruptly halted by Hebron, which eliminated the Rabs with a 35-24 defeat.

Centers strain for the opening tip-off.



Russell Carlson provided reserve strength for the Rablets.

First-string forwards were always hard pressed by Tony Manne.

Kenneth Vaughn strengthened the team's reserve power.

Gino Donofrio was a strong factor in the successful season.

James Palm was always commendable in play at the front court post.

Though he saw little action, Fred Veach was always eager to play.

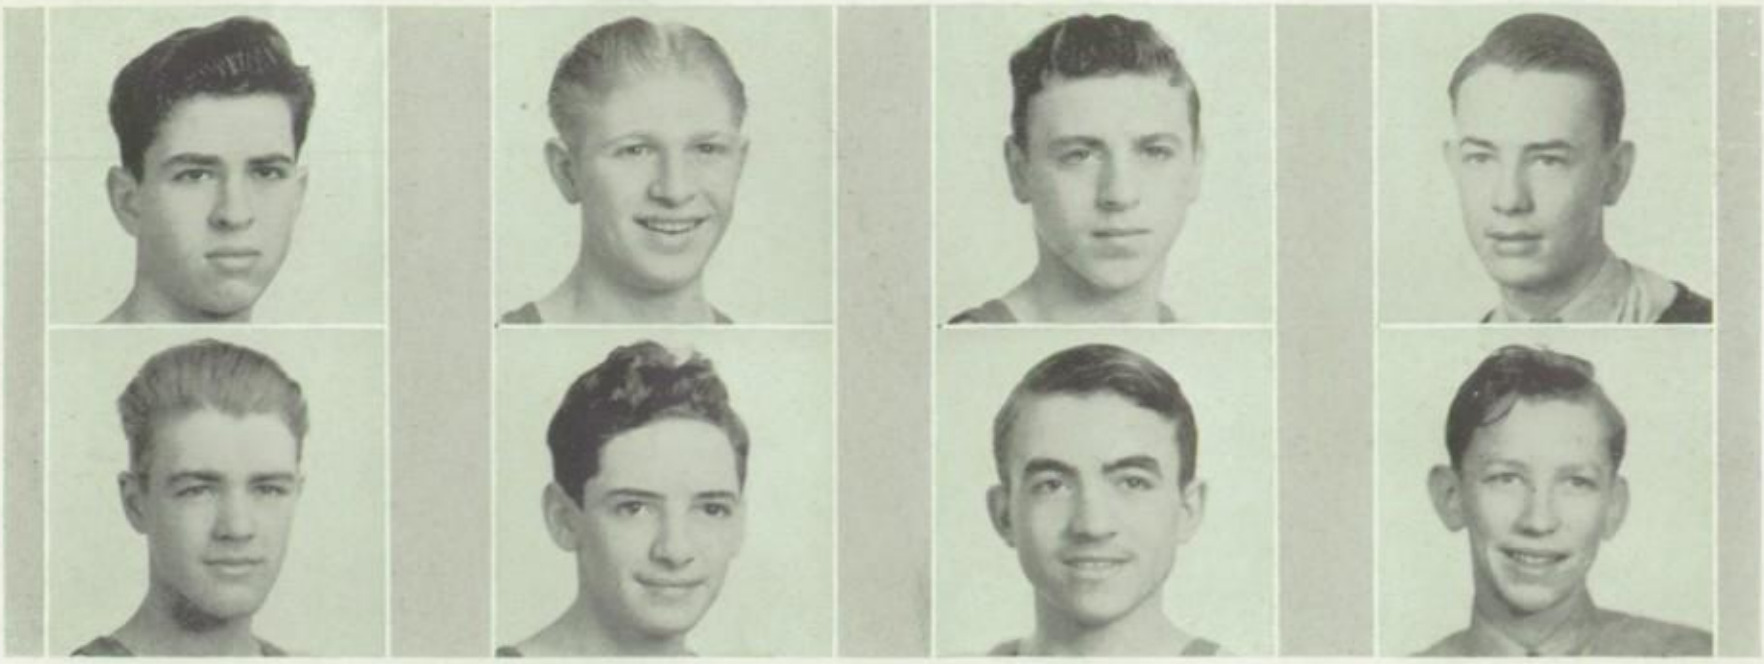
John Palm was selected as center on the All-Conference team.

As reserve forward, Millard McEntee saw much active service.

PONIES SHARE TITLE

Losing only four games while winning eleven, Coach Lowell Spurgeon's Rockford lightweights came through with a conference championship. In the last year of lightweight competition in the Big Seven, the Rablets shared the title with Elgin after garnering more points than any other team, light or heavy, in the conference. Opening on December 8 against non-conference Sterling, the ponies lost, 21-19. In the next two games the Rablets emerged as victors, beating East Aurora, 42-40, and Belvidere, 29-25. December 22 saw the Rablets snap Joliet's thirty-nine game winning streak, 46-35.

The lights capitalize on a rebound shot.



Pete Stavros played hard and well when given the opportunity.

Joe Gebbia gave a good account of himself in every game.

Joe Tangorra was always fighting hard for a regular berth.

Frank Hibbard was a key man in the lightweight managerial set-up.

Gustaf Widell's hard, steady play won the respect of others.

Italo Calacci's playing won him the admiration of all.

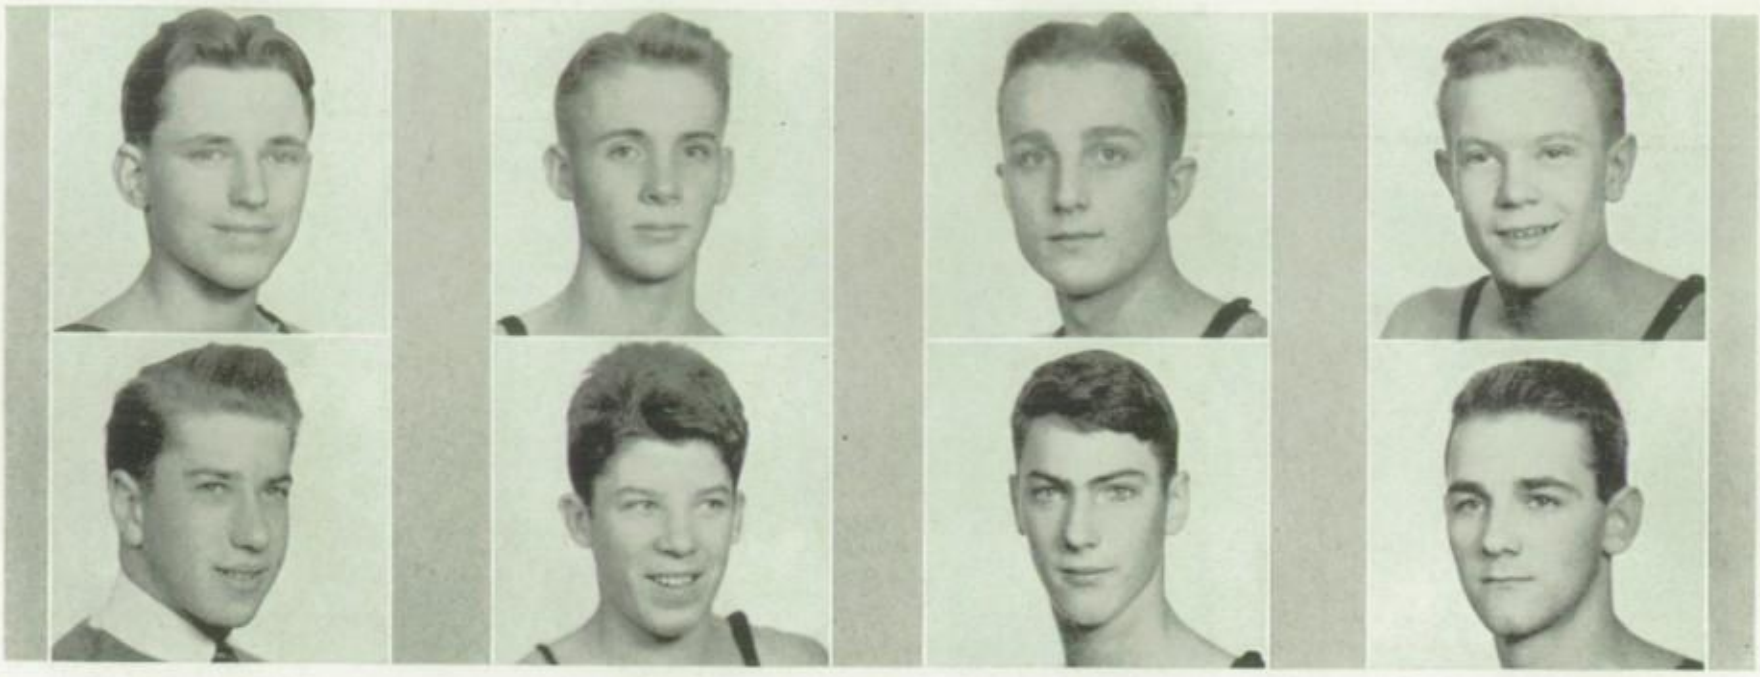
Albert Peila gained much experience in the role of a reserve.

As manager, Bill Deschaine faithfully executed his many duties.

WIN TEN; LOSE TWO

After conquering West Aurora, 27-25, and LaSalle-Peru, 39-28, the Rablets bowed to Elgin, 40-39. Facing Belvidere in a return engagement January 15, the ponies lost, 36-17. Their next victim was Freeport, which they beat, 27-22. The Rab lights carried on their race for the title by conquering East Aurora, 39-34; Joliet, 44-27; and West Aurora, 44-32. Their lead was undisputed on February 9, when LaSalle again fell, 39-37. Elgin took part of the title by winning, 31-30, on February 16. The final game on February 23 ended in defeat for Freeport, 25-21.

Rablets show their opponents rapid action.



Dick Bornor, crawlstroker, helped the Rabs win many meets.

Albert Bendes faithfully executed his duties as swimming manager.

William Joslyn was another of the Rabs' excellent back strokers.

In combination diving and breast stroking, Mallory Mitchell was tops.

Lawrence Olson was a valuable man in 200-yard free style races.

Addison Foss was relied upon in the 200-yard crawlstroke relay.

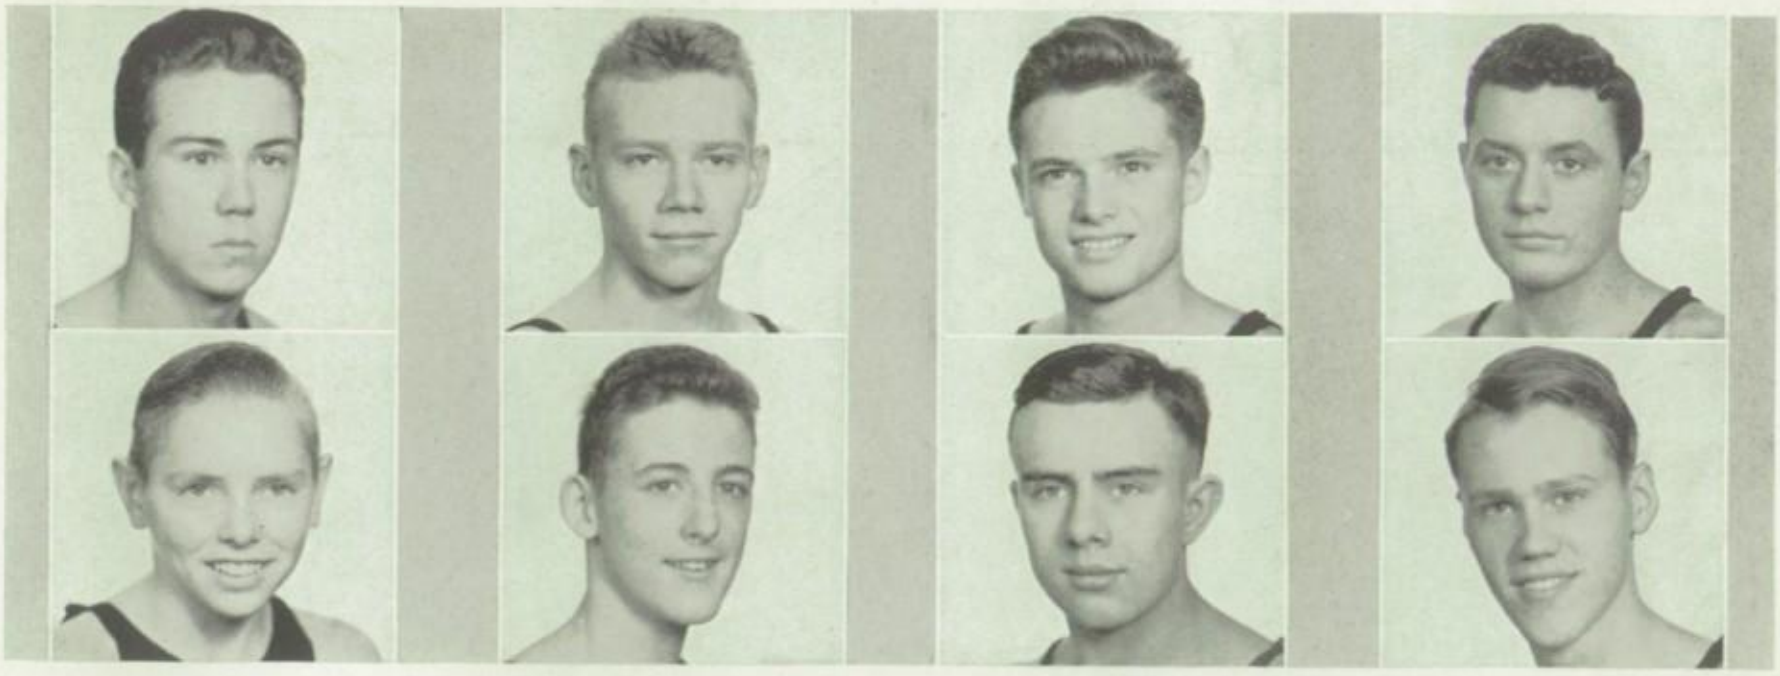
Another crawlstroker, Bob Adams swam well in his first season.

Captain Carleton Anderson was a truly great back stroke swimmer.

TANKERS WIN 6 MEETS

Rockford's 1939-40 swimming season was a successful one, with Coach Charles Beyer's team winning six of their nine meets and placing fourth in the state meet. The tankers started their season on December 8, with a defeat at the hands of Clinton, Iowa, 39-36. On December 16, the Rabs polished off Oak Park, 41-34. Clinton came to Rockford January 12, with a record of five perfect years and was upset, 47-28. At New Trier, January 20, the Rabs lost, 52-23. LaSalle-Peru met defeat at Rockford's hands on January 26, and at Janesville February 6, the Rab tankers won, 54-21.

Coach Beyer gives last-minute instructions.



Bernard Walters, first breast stroker, also served as a crawlstroker.

Robert Westfall proved himself valuable in back stroke swimming.

Henry Broquist duplicated last year's performance in the back stroke.

A successful breast stroke swimmer, Richard Dost saw much service.

Ray Nihan swam the crawlstroke in most of the Rabs' meets.

The top crawlstroker, Norman Sadewater, was graduated in February.

Brassie Cascio was counted on for points in the crawlstroke events.

For three years Norman Estwing, crawlstroker, helped the Rabs win.

FOURTH IN ILLINOIS

February 10, Maine Township beat the Rabs, 39-35. In a return meet with LaSalle February 16 the Rabs won, 42-33. In the annual Illinois high school swimming meet, February 23 and 24, Rockford made 12 points to take fourth place behind Lane, New Trier, and Danville. In the last meet of the season, February 27, the Rabs again beat the Janesville swimmers, 54-29. The annual pentathlon was won by Carleton Anderson, who set an all-time record for versatility. Bernie Walters finished second, with Henry Broquist taking third.

Four Rab tankers line up for the start.

Donald Brown won a favorable reputation in the hurdling events.

For two years Alan Wolfley has served efficiently as track manager.

Tony Manne soon became one of the team's leaders in hurdling.

Morris Bianchi was an outstanding sprinter in his second year.

Vincent Musso proved himself valuable in the hurdling events.

Daniel Hill's ability in the half-mile race won him a position.

Returning this year, Dominic DiMarzio has done well as a hurdler.

Robert Gustafson returned to new records in the high jump.

RABS FOURTH IN STATE

Winning the two-mile relay, Charles A. Beyer's track team opened the 1939 season by taking seventh place in the annual Oak Park relays April 1. April 27, Oak Park won a dual meet at Rockford, 68½-53½. During this meet five Beyer field track records were broken.

Rab tracksters placed eighth in a meet at Wheaton, April 29, with Vito Lopin winning the pole vault event. Clinton, Iowa, was the scene of the next meet, in which the Rockford team received 47½ points for a third place.

Two boys break the tape nearly together.

Bruce Soderburg returned to the team as a competent miler.

A well-known sprinter, John Girardin was respected in conference meets.

Rockford's record-breaking weight thrower was George Champion.

James Faul was depended upon to set new records in the javelin throw.

Keith Mulford served the Rabs successfully in the javelin throw.

Jack Fissinger was a member of Rockford's winning relay team.

Frank Alonzo returned for his second year as a weight thrower.

Seen in jumping events, Eugene Speck won many points for the Rabs.

BREAK TRACK RECORDS

For the thirteenth consecutive time the Rabs won the district track title in a meet run at Beyer field. In this meet George Champion broke the field records for the shot put and discus throw. A dual meet with Freeport on May 13 was won by Rockford, 95-27.

In the state meet, May 19-20, the Rabs placed fourth, Lopin winning first in the pole vault event. The Big Seven conference meet, held at East Aurora on May 27, was won by Rockford with a score of 62½, followed by Elgin.

A field of eight starts one of the heats.

Richard Miner helped the RHS team in several meets as a singles player.

The number one singles man, Don Carter, captured the district title.

Paul Gustafson, a reserve man, gave the regulars much competition.

Bill Sterling was noted for his play in singles competition.

Hayden Bradford reached the semi-finals in the state doubles tournament.

Ralph Groves, playing with Hinchliff, scored many Rab victories.

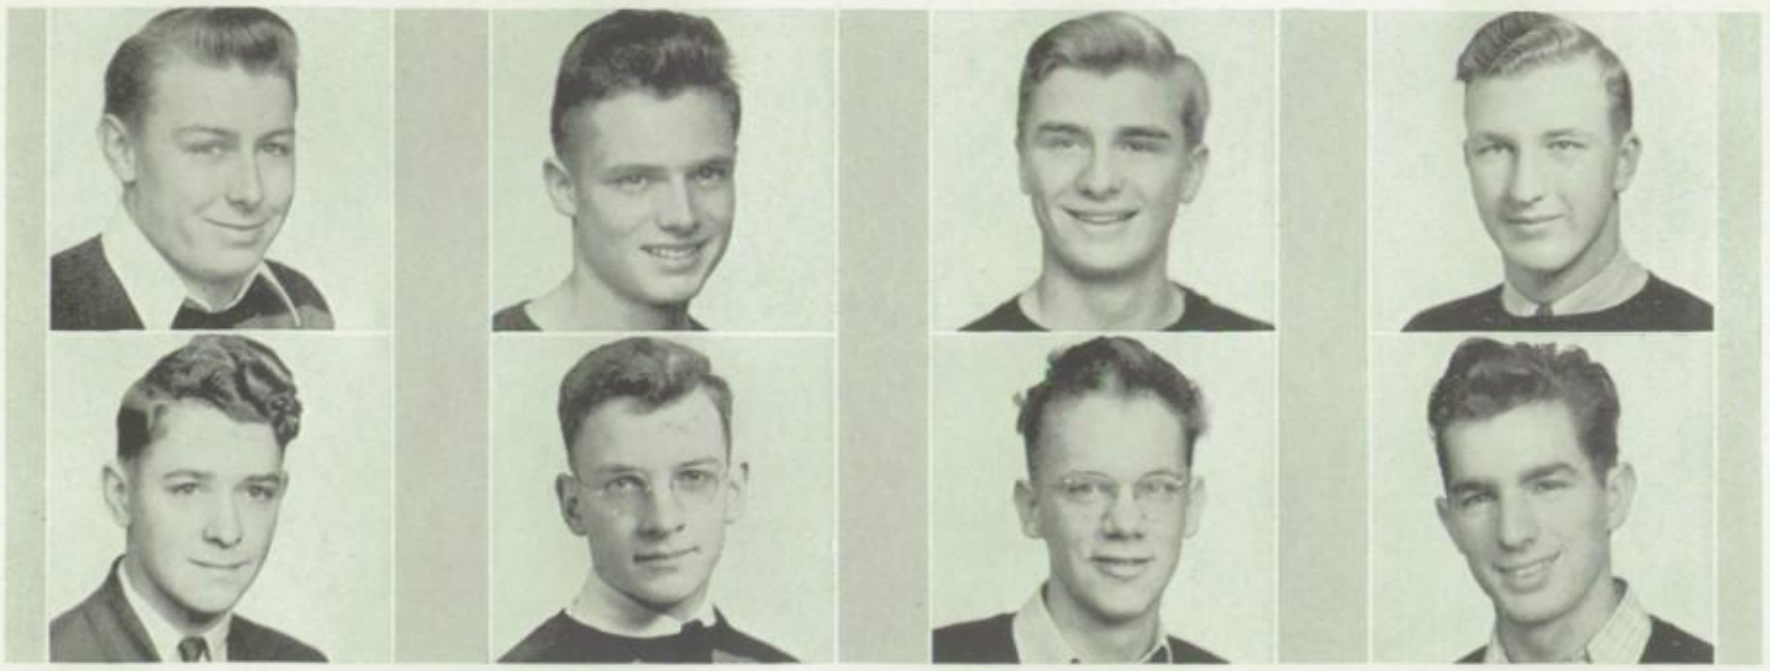
Rockwell Hinchliff served as a valuable captain and doubles player.

The second member of the state semi-finalist team was Arthur Mattison.

NETTERS RANK HIGH

Coach Tom Horrall's tennis team opened its 1939 season by winning over Freeport, Beloit, and Woodstock netters, and then went on to place first in the district meet on May 6. In the latter event Hinchliff and Groves took the doubles crown and Carter captured the singles title. In the state meet held on May 19-20 the twosome of Mattison and Hinchliff advanced to the semi-finals, finally bowing to last year's semi-finalists. In the Big Seven meet, last of the season, the Rab team placed second, being topped by Joliet.

Richard Miner warms up in pre-season practice.



Lewis Scandroli, the team's high scorer, won fifteen points.

Likable Bill Nelson, manager, furnished transportation for the team.

Although only a sophomore, Ray Nihan played in most of the meets.

Jack Porter, second in the district meet, could always be counted on to score.

Robert Rosecrance did well, winning his dual matches.

Robert Felker was one of the leading candidates for this season's team.

Captain Phil Marcellus won first place in Big Seven and District meets.

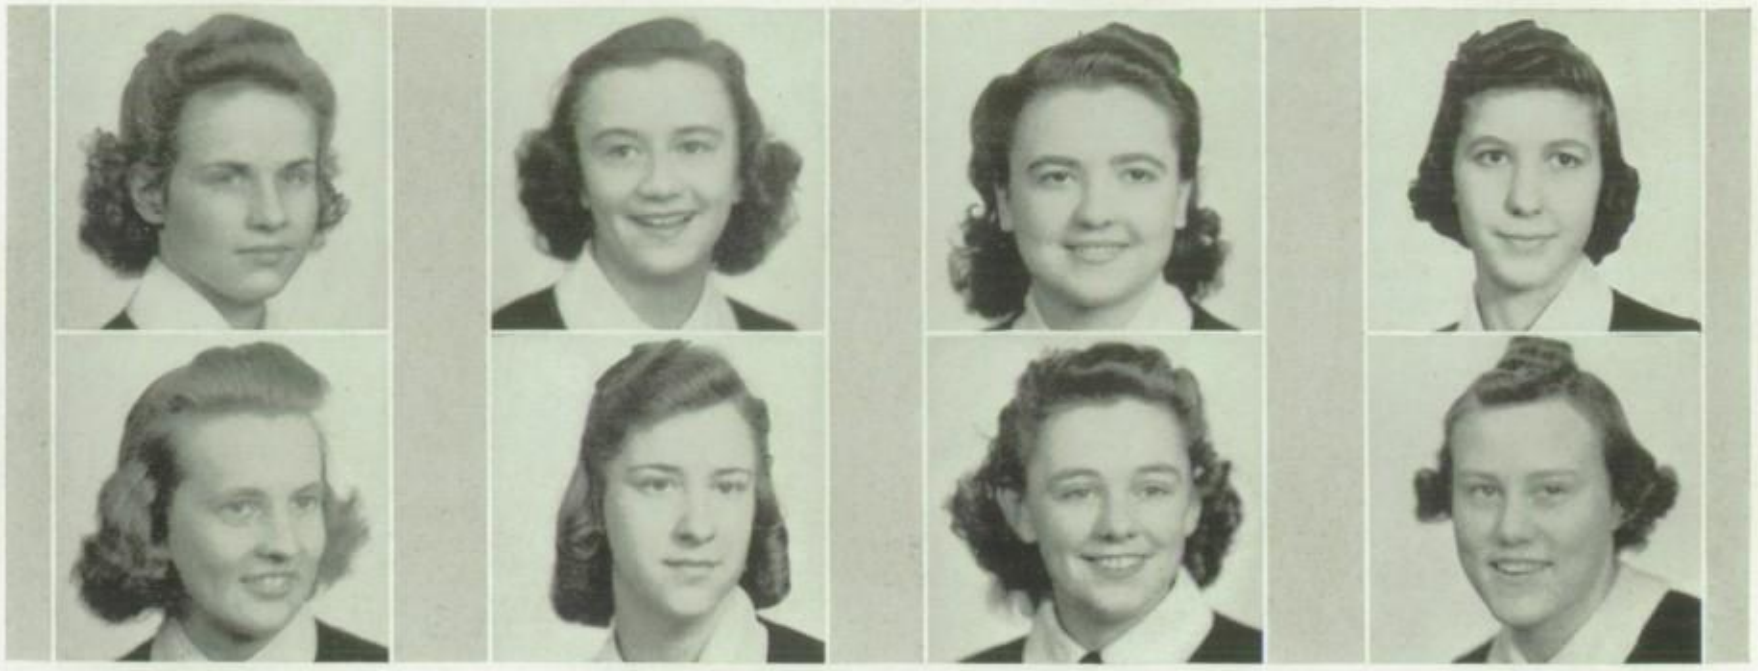
Louis Demolli won most of the dual matches in which he played.

TAKE 5 GOLF MEETS

Coach James Laude's golf team opened its 1939 season by winning at Oregon, 14-1, and duplicating the performance at home. Traveling to Freeport, they took a meet, 14-1; later the Freeport golfers were defeated in a return meet, 15-0.

The district meet, held at Sandy Hollow golf course on May 6, was taken by Rockford, Marcellus placing first and Porter second. In the state meet, May 12, the Rabs placed fifth. On May 27 Marcellus took first in the Big Seven conference meet, and the Rabs, second.

Four of the Rab golfers check their scores.



Having completed eight semesters, Betty Shugart owns a major letter.

With seven semesters' work, Eileen Murphy possesses a major letter.

With nine semesters' credit, Evelyn Nadolny has a major award.

A senior, Verna Katke has been given a major award.

Dorothy Grenke is one of the highest-ranking Junior members.

Twelve semesters make Jean Moody eligible for the Senior bracelet.

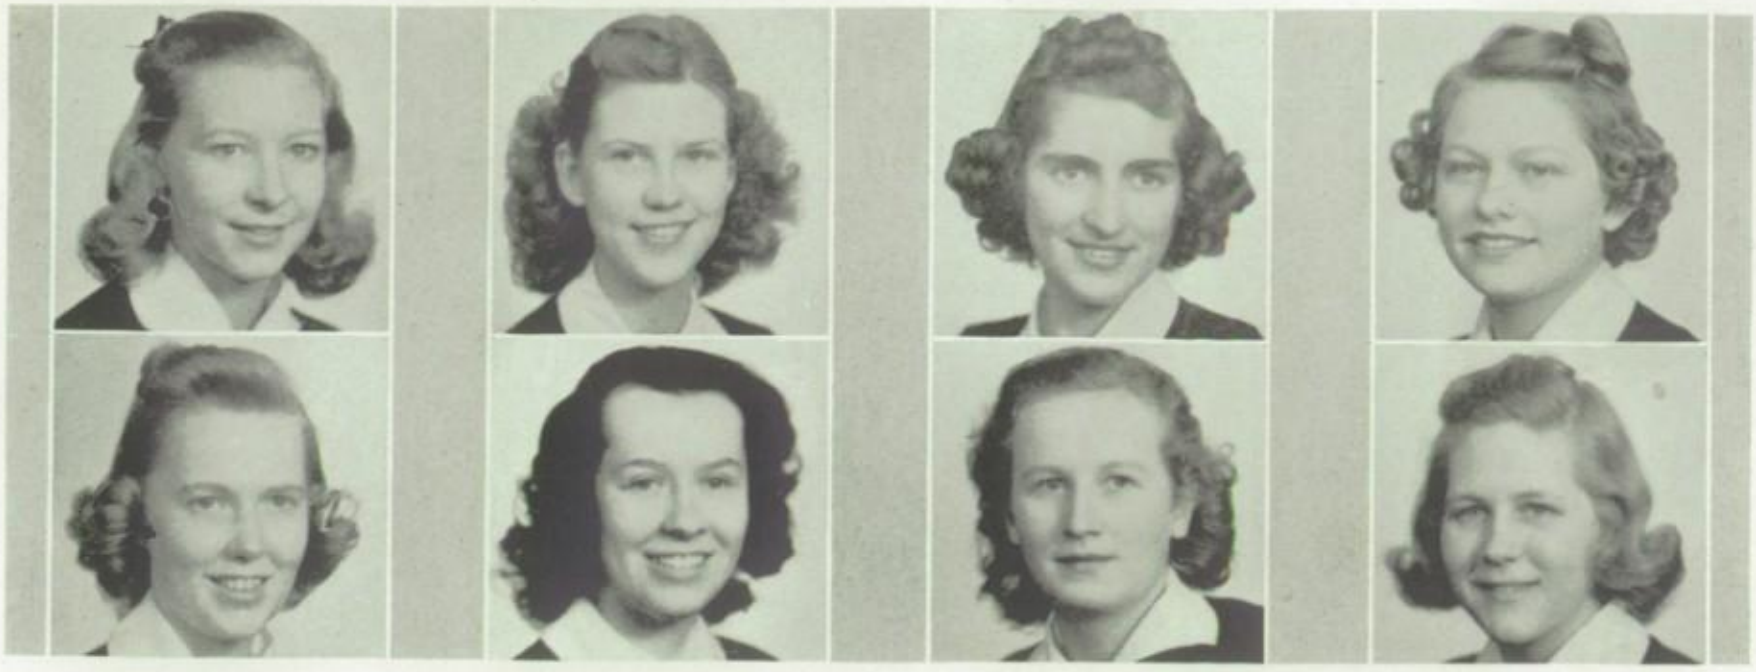
An eight-semester Junior, June DeCarlo has her major award.

Lillian Curtis was G.A.A. sports captain during her Junior year.

FOUND G.A.A. IN 1915

To give the girls of Rockford high school an opportunity for wholesome and competitive play, the Girls Athletic club was formed in 1915; however, some of the members became interested in literary work, and the organization divided into two clubs, the Amazon and ABL. The Amazon club, concerned with athletics, became the Girls Athletic Association in 1933. Any sophomore girl interested in athletics, willing to allow at least one night a week for G.A.A., passing in four subjects, and exhibiting responsible and worthy character above the average, may join this organization.

G.A.A. members sell colors twice a year.



Always dependable, Marcia Nelson, a senior, owns a major award.

Barbara Anderson possesses a major letter for seven semesters' work.

For eight semesters' work, Leona Balestri has earned a letter.

Especially good in swimming, Ilah Anderson has a major letter.

Margaret Paulson is a worthy owner of a major letter.

Seven semesters, Lucille Miller has worked for a major letter.

Participation in both divisions gave Lois Treadway her major letter.

A capable student assistant is Harriet Bergren with twelve semesters' experience.

ASSIST IN PAGEANT

Twice each year, on the days of the important football and basketball games, the G.A.A. girls sell colors throughout the school.

Between halves of the last two heavyweight football games in the history of Rockford high school, last fall, a beautiful ceremony was presented by the school band. Included in this pageant was a display of flags representing each school in the Big Seven conference. Presenting these colors were seven high-ranking G.A.A. girls: Lillian Curtis, Bernice Johnson, Harriet Bergren, Sylvia Block, Dorothy Livingston, Ruth Tholin, and Barbara Claussen.

These seven girls represent Rockford's color-bearers.

Transferring to Rockford, Frances Ross has proved herself very worthy.

Many awards for excellent swimming have gone to Frances Grimm.

Dorothy Ellison boasts a major letter for her eight semesters.

Beruta Stephan also has a major letter to her credit in her last year.

Beruta Marma, a senior, has seven semesters to her credit.

A consistent, hard working member is Martha Butler, a senior.

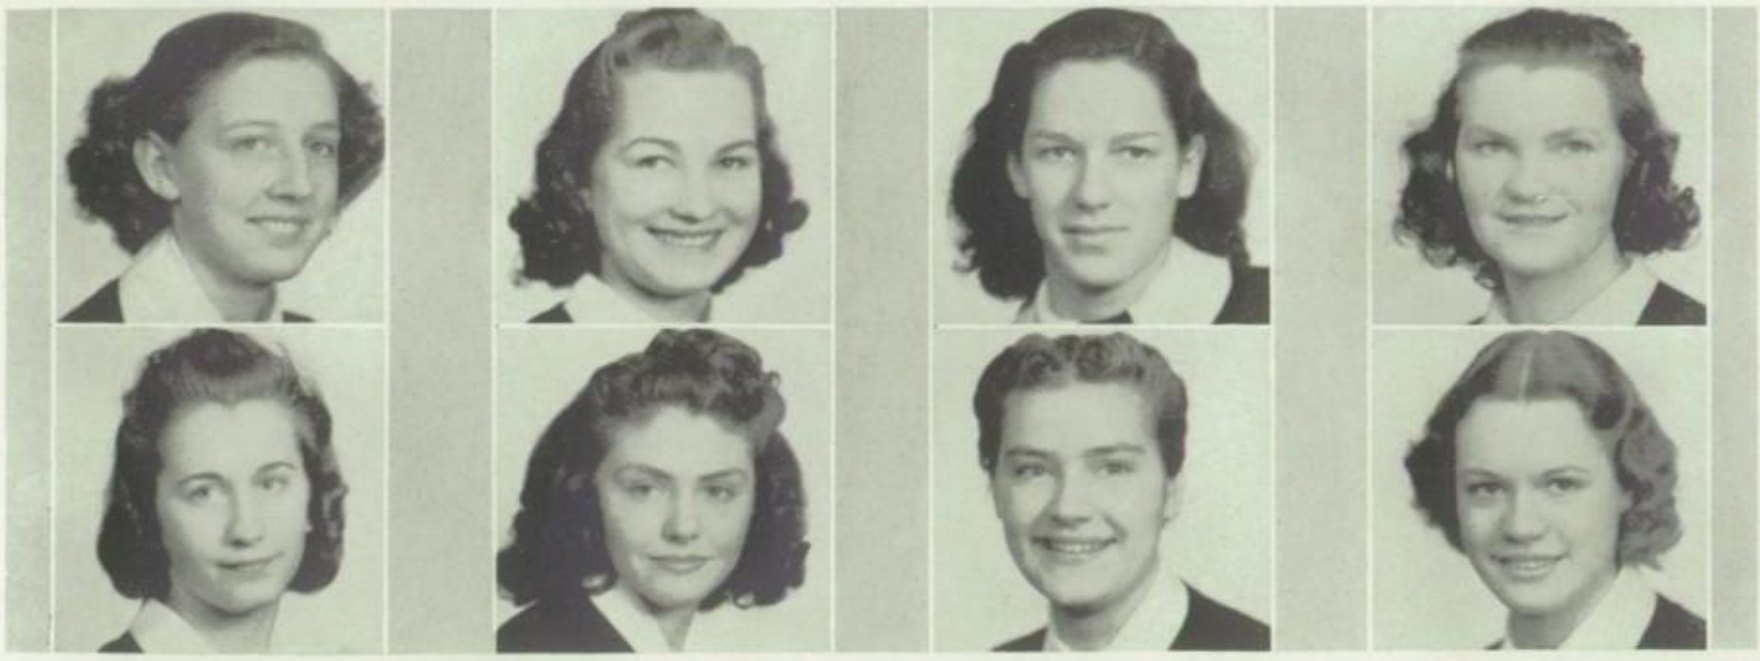
After nine semesters' work, Lois Wilking holds a major letter.

Marjorie Anderson has played hard during seven semesters' work.

GIRLS WIN EMBLEMS

On Award Day each February and June, G.A.A. members with five semesters' credit including both sports and swimming receive major awards and those with four semesters' credit receive minor letters which may be exchanged later for major ones if the requirements are met. The Belfield awards are red emblems to be worn only on regulation black sweaters. These letters may be taken away from their owners temporarily or permanently for failing to pass studies or for disorderly conduct. Each student assistant and captain also receives an emblem for her work.

The seniors triumph over sophomores in volleyball.



Excellent in volley ball, Marjorie Halladay is a major award owner.

Seven semesters' credit has given Lorina Carlson a major award.

A great asset to any volley ball team is Mary Vernarsky.

Margaret Campbell has been a valuable member in tournament teams.

Laura Tooley, who is interested in swimming, is a senior.

Six semesters' work gives Wanna Mae Weeks a major letter.

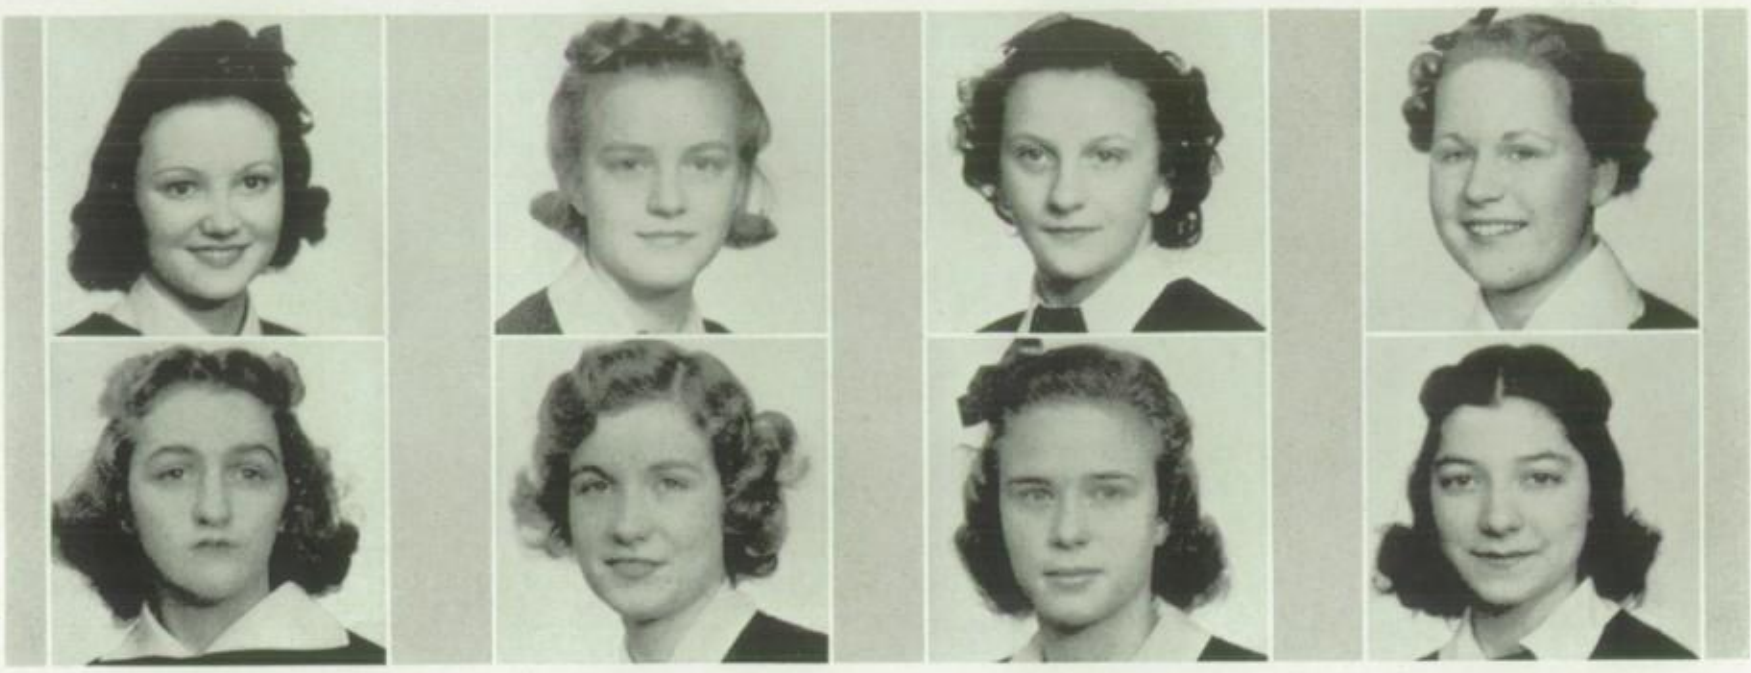
Phyllis Peterson, a junior, has played on many tournament teams.

Bernice Mumma has divided her time between swimming and sports.

BRACELET IS HONOR

Highest award in G.A.A. is the Senior bracelet presented to girls with twelve semesters' credit. The first recipients of this award were Dorothy Sharp and Julie Smith in 1936. Since then, fifteen bracelets have been given. The most outstanding member of G.A.A., past or present, is Ruth Tholin. She is the only girl ever to receive a major letter, captain's award, student assistant's emblem, and Senior bracelet. Nevertheless, every G.A.A. member proves that she is persistent and active, for attendance is required of each member every week unless illness prevents.

The juniors play a sprightly baseball game.



As Sophomore swimming captain, Betty Henderson is a valuable member.

Only recipient of the four highest awards is Ruth Tholin.

A former swimming captain, Barbara Claussen has ten semesters' credit.

Sylvia Block, a student assistant, has played in numerous tournaments.

Eunice Ransome is eligible to receive the Senior bracelet award.

A frequent swimming contestant, Helene Miller is Senior swimming captain.

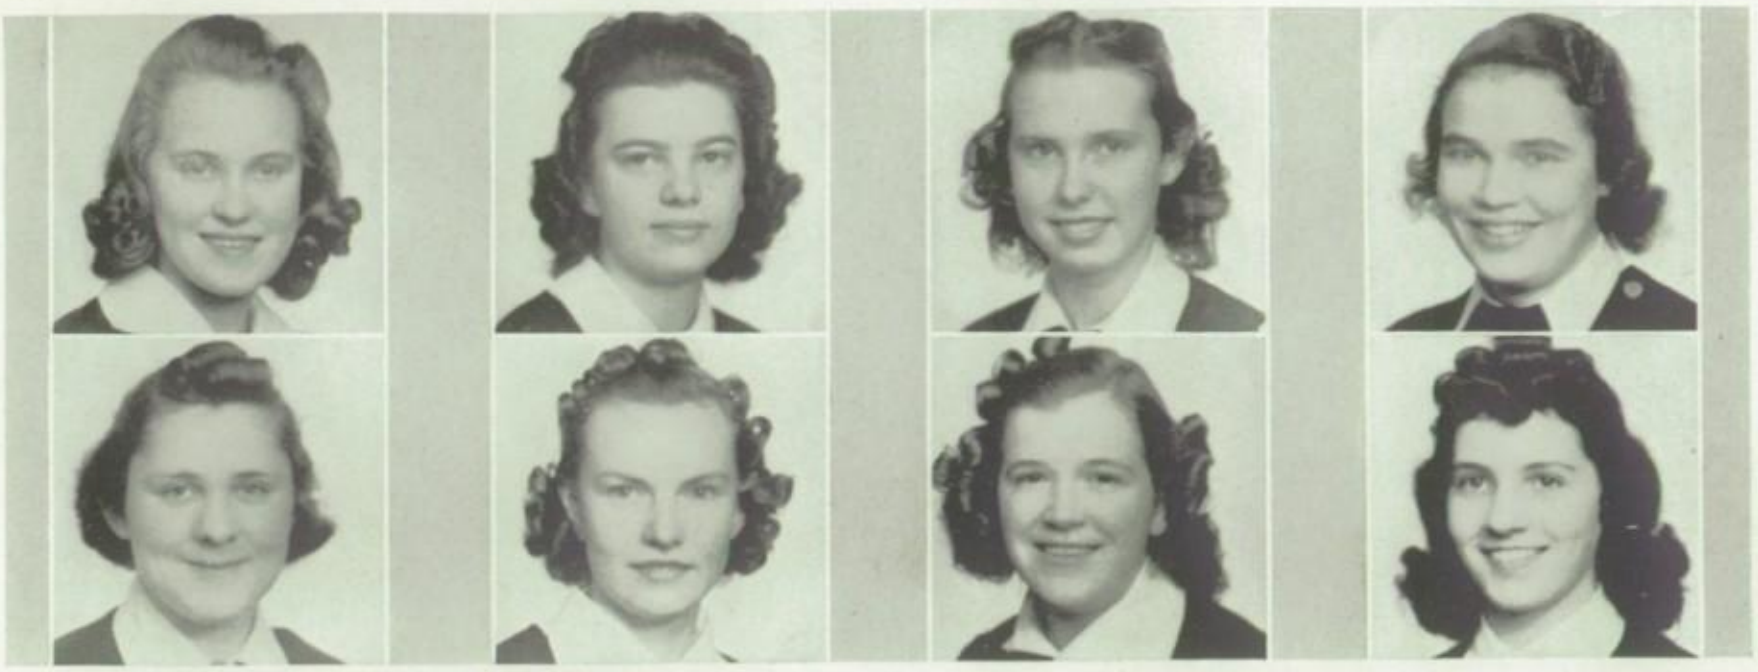
A player in every tournament, Margaret Appelquist is Junior sports captain.

Christine Moucoulis is a student assistant with a major letter.

HOLD 3 TOURNAMENTS

In the sports section on club nights, games are played between the various teams for enjoyment, recreation, and selection of best players. These games culminate in the three intra-class tournaments held during the proper seasons for volleyball, basketball, and baseball. A new award, a red pin with black lettering, was presented in the sports section this year to each member of the winning teams in each sport. In the volleyball tournament, Sylvia Block's team captured the Senior title; Frances Shaw's, the Junior title; and Faith Johnson's, the Sophomore title.

The sophomores engage in a basketball game.



For a major letter Ruth Smedberg has worked six semesters.

A great asset to all tournament teams is Clara Odorski.

Lavina Farquharson is eligible to receive the Senior bracelet.

Helen McGill owns a major letter for eight semesters' work.

Through persistent, regular work, Harriet Pratt has a major letter.

For nine semesters Mary Jane Miller has played in tournaments.

With nine semesters' credit Dorothy Best has a major award.

For nine semesters' work Marion Nall owns a major letter.

STAGE SWIMMING MEET

To obtain the required swimming credits each semester, one has to swim one-half mile and procure 100 points, 60 of which must be acquired along life-saving lines. At the same time the girls develop their strokes and diving ability for use in the inter-class swimming meet held once each year. The first three winners of each contest receive ribbons, while the highest individual scorer receives a gold medal. Winning the Red Cross Expert Swimmers Award is another high honor of which Frances Grimm was the first winner in 1939.

Ruth Tholin referees a senior basketball game.

Eligible for the bracelet, Bernice Johnson is Senior sports captain.

With nine semesters' credit Betty Trapp owns a major award.

Interested in swimming, Lucy Savetski is a major award winner.

Participating only in sports, Betty Gilmore has a minor letter.

Rose Pavone, excellent in aquatics, was elected Junior swimming captain.

Six semesters' work has given Rose Giorgi a major letter.

Dorothy Livingston is a high-ranking, hard-working student assistant.

Ruth Winquist began well by being elected Sophomore sports captain.

ORGANIZE 5 GROUPS

Each Monday night this year the seniors, captained by Bernice Johnson, have met under Miss Scandroli's direction; the juniors have met Thursdays under Miss Vera Hunter's supervision with Margaret Appelquist captaining. The sophomores with Ruth Winquist as captain, have met Wednesday evenings in charge of Miss Currier, general G.A.A. adviser. In February another Sophomore unit was organized with Miss Kirby as adviser and Barbara Rinehimer, captain. Swimming groups have met Tuesday nights with Miss Pierce. Captains have been Helene Miller, senior; Rose Pavone, junior; and Betty Henderson, sophomore.

Demonstrating life-saving is fun as well as useful.

Practically every tournament has seen Margaret Benfield as a player.

A past Sophomore swimming captain, Betty Duncan has six semesters credit.

Very active in the Senior sport section is Jean Lawson.

Playing well on every tournament team has been Lila Davis.

With her unbounded energy Grace Braid has worked eight semesters.

Vonda Davis is a faithful member with six semesters' credit.

Always playing hard and clean is Dorothy Glomp, a senior.

Myrtle Hallberg has received a major letter for six semesters.

CAPTAINS RANK HIGH

Captains must be popular, reliable, good leaders, and exceptional players, for they must lead their teams in tournaments and in record of attendance.

To be chosen a student assistant by Miss Currier is an honor to a girl because this indicates that she is well liked, trustworthy, and well acquainted with the games played. It is the student assistant's task to referee all games, and, in general, to supervise the activities of each meeting. Student assistants this year have been Ruth Tholin, Sylvia Block, Dorothy Livingston, Harriet Bergren, and Christine Moucoulis.

The human chain is a practical method of life-saving.

Mr. Willard Hurst, well-known law professor at the University of Wisconsin, headed the 1928 Owl staff.

I BELIEVE that most former Owl workers would agree with me that the business of reporting and editing the affairs of complicated school community tends to foster habits of craftsmanship for which they have lasting reason to be grateful. Such experience makes one a more alert and curious observer, sharpens the detail and fullness of his observation, cultivates an instinct to search for the critical facts in a situation. And this has deeper meaning than merely to promote "efficiency." The color and temper of one's living depends more on the workmanship with which he does the job than on the mere fact of the finished product. . . . In giving the experience it does in the workmanship of thought and expression, the Owl goes to the heart of what education is all about.

FEATURES ★

Every newspaper contains stories which have no definite news value. That is, they may be used on a certain day, but it makes no particular difference if they are used later. For example, the fact that a man in Seattle is 110 years old has little effect on the lives of readers in Rockford; yet they enjoy reading about it in their newspapers. This story and countless others like it are feature, or "human interest," stories. They are printed in order to play upon the emotions of the readers, thus affording a relief from the bare facts of news stories.

Although the many extra-curricular and spontaneous activities of school life are not necessary in obtaining an education, school would be almost unbearable without them. They are our features, and this fourth division is devoted to them.

For students interested in developing a greater facility in French conversation and in gaining an opportunity to learn more about the French people, the French club was formed in 1929 by Miss Sylvia Brewer and Mrs. Helen Loveless Vaughn, French instructors.

Meetings are attended by members who must have had one or more semesters of the French language. These meetings occur on the first and third Monday of each month, with Miss Sylvia Brewer, French instructor and adviser.

The program that was considered by the members most outstanding of the year was a talk by Miss Edith Stewart, a Roosevelt Junior high school teacher, on her summer spent in Europe and of her experiences there. She also exhibited articles that she had purchased while in France.

Besides being an interesting and educational organization, the club has served Rockford high school by presenting the French class rooms with pictures and French magazines.

Janet Pfeiffer, a former president of the club; Jane Stanbery and Elizabeth Wing are outstanding members of the organization cited for their willingness to cooperate.

Founded in 1937 by Miss Isabel Fisher, adviser and instructor, the Pan-American League was formerly the Spanish club. The League was organized in order to further the interest and understanding already existing between the Latin-American countries and the United States. In December a group met in Florida for the purpose of establishing a National Student Pan-American League. A central conference of Pan-American clubs met in Chicago last year and representatives from school leagues in northern Illinois attended. Richard Conklin was elected treasurer of the conference.

In order to become a member of the Pan-American League, the student must have had or be studying the Spanish language. This is necessary qualification for the meetings are oftentimes carried on in Spanish.

A play given in Spanish and also in costume was considered one of the most outstanding of this year's programs. A talk on Mexico was given by Mr. Melvin Lundahl of Mexico City. Known for their interest in the club are Richard Conklin, Marion Arbogast, Annette Slive, and Marion Mabee.

LATIN CLUB ★

BETTY HOLMSTROM	Secretary	ADALYN THOMPSON
ESTHER SUMNER	Treasurer	PATRICIA HALL

Mrs. Julia Shafer Chrystal, former instructor, was the chief promoter of the Latin club, an organization for Latin students which was founded in 1926. In order to know that those who enroll will be interested in Latin, the qualification for membership is that the applicant must have completed one year of that language. To acquaint one with the lives of the Romans and the study of English derivation of Latin words is the chief purpose of the Latin club. The club also proves to be a help in the school Latin course. The meetings are held on alternate Mondays with Miss Kelley, instructor.

Among the important programs of this year have been the appearance of the Neapolitan trio; a talk by Miss Hazel Putnam on the derivation of English words; and a discussion of the Roman Saternalia. An afternoon party under the auspices of the club is always an important social function.

Among the members who have given much of their time for the interest of the club are Alvin Salisbury, Esther Sumner, and Elizabeth Harvey.

To inform the members about Germany and its people, their customs, cities, and industries is the chief purpose of the German club. It was in 1930 that Miss Mary Herzog, an instructor, founded the Deutsche Gesellshaft in the hope of furthering the love for the German language and binding the club members together in friendship and cooperation.

The activities of the German club have been numerous this season. Included on the program have been an interesting talk about Germany by Mrs. James Severson who visited that country last summer; a classical musico; and a talk by Miss Gladys Ekeberg concerning a trip through some of the German cities. On other programs of the year were German movies and a quiz program.

To be eligible for membership in the club, one must be a student or have an interest in the German language. The meetings are held on alternate Mondays with Miss Anna Driebusch, instructor.

Members who have made German club activities more interesting this year are Bill Trefz, Barbara Granath, James Beattie, and Harriett Spongberg.

"Admiratrices des Belles Lettres" which translated is "Admirers of Beautiful Literature" is the meaning of ABL. The club was founded in 1916 for the purposes of bringing together girls with interest in literature and finer arts, and of promoting this interest through instructive meetings. Only students who have completed their first year in high school and have had honor roll grades in their English courses are eligible for membership in the club.

A "What's My Name?" contest in which the students answered questions about authors constituted one of the meetings. Other programs were one given by Honorary Musical Society, a talk on Mexico by Miss Mignon Erickson, English instructor and adviser of the club, and pictures on Mexico by Mr. Frank Colehour. Betty Jean Minard and Marcia Nelson have served the club as program chairmen for obtaining interesting speakers.

Each year the ABL club sponsors the presentation of the ABL Cup, which is awarded to the Senior girl most outstanding in scholarship and service. This year the club donated Victrola records to the English department.

PATRICIA WING	Treasurer	MILDRED FIELD

"What should be done about the German Bunds in America?", a typical discussion carried on by the members of the Forum club, was considered very outstanding by Miss Lois Dilley and Mr. Charles Whitenack, the Forum club advisers. Other discussions that were presented concerned the problems of whether athletes should be paid for their contributions to the life and fame of their colleges, and whether there is freedom of speech and press in America. With Gordon Tullock, as moderator, the Forum club put on a symposium for 8-5-3 club on "Propaganda—What it is, How to detect it, and What to do about it."

Although the Forum club seems to be a comparatively new one, it is not, for it grew out of the Book club. This took place when Miss Dilley, adviser, along with the officers of the Book club decided that the club overlapped the ABL club in purpose, type of program, and the requirements for membership.

Outstanding members other than the club officers are Irving Dahlstedt, Elizabeth Wing, Mary Wolcott, Jimmie Klein, and Alvin Salisbury.

BETTY JEAN MINARD	Treasurer	JOAN ALDRICH

From the school colors, red and black, the Rab Authors club derived its name. The purpose of the club is to encourage students who adhere to high standards of English composition and creative expression.

Miss Mellie John, head of the English department, founded the Rab Authors club in 1923 for the students interested in creative expression and who wanted to share their experiences.

After students who have shown ability in original writing are recommended for membership in the club by their English teachers, they submit two original samples of their work. To retain membership in the club, a member must write articles for which he receives points. At the end of a semester his total number of points must be fourteen.

Mr. Francis S. Edmison, author of the column Frankly Speaking, was one of the speakers during this year. Miss Jeanette Kipp, winner of creative writing scholarship at Rockford College, also spoke to the group.

Club members who are outstanding in club activities are Joan Aldrich, Betty Jean Minard, Grace Meenen, and Jon Wagner.

Organized in 1919 by Mr. Leland Burroughs, speech instructor, the Walter Hampden club was formerly known as the Dramatic club. The present club adopted the name of Walter Hampden for the actor who is famous for his interpretations of Shakespearian characters. The purpose of the Walter Hampden club is to foster interest in drama and to give students an opportunity to help produce plays. Those pupils who successfully pass their try-outs are admitted to the club as members.

Meeting with Miss Mary Hills, English instructor, the members enjoy interesting programs. One of the most outstanding programs this year was a trip to Chicago by the members of the club. The students attended a production of "Hamlet" by Maurice Evans, well-known actor. Among the plays presented have been a production of James Barrie's "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," Norley's "The Rehearsal," and a skit by the new members from the Junior play cast.

Outstanding members who have contributed to the club are Shirley Madsen, Charles Cibelius, Helene Carpenter, Dorothy Glomp, Jack McFarland, and Marion Anderson.

MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB ★

As the name implies, the purpose of the Music Appreciation club is to further the interest and the appreciation of good music in Rockford high school.

Although members of the music appreciation class and Mrs. Florence Lovejoy Shugars founded the club in March of 1935, one does not have to be a member of the class to be eligible for membership in the club. The only requirement is that the student must be interested in good music. On alternate Mondays the members meet with Miss Catharine Needham, music instructor.

During this year the club has presented a number of outstanding programs. Mr. Alex Foster, bass soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Sigfred Sandeen, appeared before the club in January. Mr. Ralph Brigham, organist of the Second Congregational Church, presented an organ recital for the members. A number of student recitals have been given during the year. Some of the students who have appeared on these programs are Arlene Dahlquist, Marilyn Muth, George Driesbach, Joan Perkins, Bill Sterling, Arthur Beckington, Marian Quixley, Margaret Price, Paul Gustafson, and David Furgason.

Previously called the Paint and Pallette club, the Daubers club was founded in 1924 and reorganized in 1932. Any art-minded student may become a member of this organization. The object of the Daubers club is to further the interest and appreciation of art in Rockford High School, and to bring together students who have a common interest. The members meet with Miss Vera Smith, art instructor and adviser, for interesting and practical meetings, such as a visit to the Burpee Art Gallery, and movies exhibited by Janet Elaine Anderson. A Christmas party was also another of the year's outstanding programs. The club sponsored a hobby exhibit in a corridor showcase. As gifts from the Daubers club, a radio and some books were presented to the art department.

Outstanding members of the club are Helen McConnoughay, who works with marionettes; Claude Salisbury, who does oil paintings; and Alice B. Carlson, who makes belts. Warren Glenny and Carolyn Lace, also active members of the Daubers club, have been working on a Snow White collection and antiques respectively.

JUNIOR ENGINEERING CLUB ★

After ten years of existence, the Junior Engineering society was reorganized in 1938 by Herbert Stone and Robert Shedd. The purpose of the club is to foster an interest in engineering among the boys.

Open to any boy interested in engineering, the Junior Engineering Society tries to establish a better relationship between men in industry and boys in school.

One of the many educational tours through Rockford industries was made to the Woodward Governor Company. The club members were able to see the many types of governors ranging from a few square inches, used in airplanes, to ten feet in breadth and height used in dams. Such things as the assembly of governors and also the governor of the salvaged submarine, Squalus, were inspected in the clean plant, one of four in this country.

Through a generous interest in the society, the Junior Engineering Society has been able to attend the meeting of the American Society of Tool Engineers each month at the Faust Hotel. A representative from Westinghouse Research Laboratories demonstrated a model air conditioner at one of the meetings.

Derived from the first two letters of sewing and cooking, the Seco club was founded in 1924 by Mrs. Ethel Frank, a former instructor. The purpose of the Seco club is to strengthen the relationship between home and school. The club has also tried to show the girls interested in home economics what careers are open for them in the field of home economics.

One of the most successful sales of this year by the Seco club was the sale of pennants. These pennants were made by the members to go on sale during the football season. Another outstanding event of this year was a style show planned by the girls in which the club members were models.

Miss Ingrid B. Nielsen, present adviser of the Seco club, is a former member of that organization. Another home economics teacher, Miss Carolyn Agnew, was also a member of the club.

Besides the officers, who have given much of their time toward furnishing ideas for the club's activities, other outstanding members are Lorraine Anderson, Juanita Patrick, and Ruth Zetterberg.

One could not guess very well upon looking at the name Aceraceae club, unless that person is acquainted with Latin, that it is the botany club. Aceraceae is the scientific name of the Maple, a common tree in this region.

To promote general interest in botany, Mr. Lamont Clikeman, science instructor, founded the club in 1936. Not only does the Aceraceae club benefit the students taking botany, but it creates an interest in the outdoor life surrounding the school.

Any student interested in botany has the opportunity of participating in interesting meetings. The fall trip to Rock Cut Forest Preserve is considered the most outstanding program planned by the club. Ranking next in line among the activities arranged are a picnic and afternoon dance. One of the most unusual sales of the school is sponsored by the botany club—the sale of mistletoe shortly before Christmas.

Scanning through the list of Aceraceae alumni, one finds such names as Ned Garst, Doris Williams, and Bernard Gill, class of 1939, who were well-known in other club and school affairs.

To publish a monthly zoology paper for the furthering of scientific knowledge and also to furnish zoology students with information otherwise unobtainable through lack of supplementary textbooks is the purpose of the Zoo club. It was in April, 1937, that Ray Krevel, a student, with the assistance of the present adviser, Miss Aleta McEvoy, founded the club.

As a member of the Illinois Junior Academy of Science, the Zoo club stages a state exhibit every year in which science classes from all over the state of Illinois participate. The "Zoo" paper has been fortunate in winning first prize in the illustrated magazine exhibit the last few years.

Among the important programs of the past year were a field trip and breakfast on a farm northeast of the city, and an educational lecture on bees by William Hahn, Zoo editor. The meetings held twice monthly are for the purpose of giving assignments for the paper. Some of the outstanding members of the Zoo club are William Hahn, Harry Gregerson, Roger Ryan, Mildred Field, and Stanton Olson.

Organized in 1923 by faculty and student members of the social science department, the 8-5-3 club derived its name from the words history, economics, and civics. These words start with the eighth, fifth, and third letters of the alphabet, respectively.

Considered to be the most outstanding program of this year was a panel discussion given before the members by the Forum club. The purpose of the discussion was to acquaint the students with the problems that propaganda presents. A Christmas party was held this year to which members brought gifts of food for distribution to Rockford's needy. Betty Ann Flynn, a student at Rockford High who formerly lived in England, gave an account of life in that country. An afternoon dance, and a spring evening dance are social affairs of the 8-5-3 club.

The purpose of the club, which meets with Miss Maxine Ollman, instructor, is to promote and further the interest in the subjects of the social science department. Esther Sumner and Jean Moody are responsible for the programs, as they are the program chairmen.

To further the interest in shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, and retail selling is the purpose of the Commercia club. The club also aims to bring the students in the commercial department together for friendly and helpful meetings.

In 1929, Mrs. Lucille Burgoon, commercial instructor, and a group of pupils from various commercial classes established the Commercia club.

The name Commercia is derived from the word commercial. Besides this derivation, each letter in "commercia" stands for a quality which the club members should possess. The qualities are as follows: character, orderliness, manner, memory, reliability, cooperation, initiative, and accuracy.

Among the club's practical and entertaining functions this year have been a trip to the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, a Remington Rand demonstration, an afternoon party, and a movie.

The Commercia club meets every other Monday night with Miss Grace Paulson, adviser and instructor.

Helen Trosper has spent a great deal of her time in filling her position as the program chairman. She also planned the floor show for the afternoon dance. Doris Peterson made an excellent and efficient treasurer.

MONO KLUB

Since Clarence Middleton believed that the monitors should have an opportunity to meet to discuss ways of improving their system and to become acquainted with their fellow workers, he organized the Mono Klub in 1938. The club's membership is limited to monitors only, and a person automatically becomes a member upon joining the monitor force.

Although some social activities are found in the program of the club, they are not dominant, for the monitors must concern almost wholly with their business of keeping order in the student body. Social activities have, nevertheless, found their way into this club, for several afternoon parties have provided a variation from the strictly business-like program.

At the meetings every second Tuesday, members discuss the many problems that have confronted them while keeping order in the halls, directing strangers in the building, and keeping students out of the parts of the buildings which have classes during lunch hours. Mr. John Haight with the assistance of Miss Christine Sheetz has been the adviser of these activities since the club was founded.

To help high school girls become acquainted with each other in as democratic a way as possible is the purpose of the Tri-Y club. The organization is a junior branch of the YWCA and its symbol is the triangle; therefore it is known as the Tri-Y.

"To face life squarely" is the slogan of the organization, and it strives to find and give the best. Any girl who is willing to submit to these purposes is eligible for membership in the Tri-Y.

Because the Doll Festival given last year was so successful, it was decided that another should be presented. Girls grouped together and dressed dolls for different scenes as the Sleeping Beauty, and Pinnochio. After the exhibit, the dolls were presented to the Community Fund for Christmas presents. Lucy Mae McAllister exhibited her foreign dolls and Miss Crotty showed her collection of old dolls.

The Tri-Y club is divided into three groups, senior, junior, and sophomore and representatives from these groups make up the Inner-Club Council. Miss Marian Howland is the director of the "Y" activities.

Derived from the first letters of high school and YMCA, the Hi-Y club was founded in 1920 by Mr. Leo Lyons, a supervisor of health and education at that time, in order to give high school boys a better chance for fellowship; clean, wholesome recreation; and some serious thought on the problems of life.

To create and maintain throughout the school and community high standards of Christian living, is the purpose of the Hi-Y club. Any boy willing to live up to the club standards and purposes is eligible for membership.

Considered an outstanding program of the year was the induction of new members. Other important programs are the Hi-Y Tri-Y banquet, Quad-City banquet, Father-Son banquet, and the fellowships in which the club obtains the use of the gym and swimming pool. The club meetings are held every other Wednesday evening at school.

Among the many club members interested in club activities are Bill Sharp, Richard Conklin, Charles Cibelius, Fred Veach, Richard Berg, Jack Floden, Terry Swords*, Phil Marcellus, Ray Essington, and Burton Johnson.

From the first letters of the words, red and black, and the word, varsity, the Rab Varsity club gets its name. Any boy who has earned a letter in the fields of sports is qualified for membership into the "R" club. Managers and cheerleaders are not exempt from the privilege of becoming members.

Among the social features of this club are an afternoon and evening party. Service functions of the club members consist primarily in ushering at sports activities, assisting at track meets, and acting as scorers for the athletic tilts. Short business meetings are held bi-monthly followed by a baseball or basketball game or a swim in the pool.

Through the cooperation of the following coaches, Mr. Arthur Lundahl, Mr. Charles Beyer, Mr. Clarence Muhl, and Mr. James Laude, the Rab Varsity club was founded in 1927. Other clubs in the Middle West use this club as a model organization. Among the many outstanding alumni of the "R" club are Bob Packard, Olympic runner; Steve Polaski, coach of Winnebago High; and Jack Beynon, former Illini football player.

An annual observance is made of Memorial Day in the Senior high school assemblies. Seen in the picture are, from left to right, Mr. William D. Knight, Rockford attorney; Mr. Blue, principal; Mr. George H. Summers, veteran of the Civil War; Mr. Haight and Mr. Bornor, instructors in the Rockford high school. Mr. Knight and Mr. Summers spoke on the meaning of Decoration Day to an interested audience which was composed of the student body.

At the Rockford Teachers club hobby show, held in Unity Hall for two days, October 26 and 27, is this interested group of teachers from the various schools of the city. They are looking at a unique collection of canes, displayed by Mr. Haight, Rockford high school instructor. Among those in the group are Miss Olive Keye, left, Ellis School art teacher; and Miss Helen Healey, of the Roosevelt Junior High School Social Science Department.

Members of the Secretary of State's staff conducted a series of debates on traffic safety at Rockford High School in November. The debates were on the question: "Resolved: pedestrians are more responsible for motor accidents than are drivers." Mr. Maitland (left), safety committee chairman, and a group of students are seen observing the notes of James Wilkins, center. Other debaters are (left to right) Leslie Tomlin, Even Marmillion, and Emmett McGrath.

ASSEMBLIES

Dr. Glenn Cunningham, holder of the world record for the one-mile run and an Olympic champion, spoke at a special assembly given for boys in the Senior auditorium on November 9. Dr. Cunningham, who advocates clean living as the path to success, used this topic for his address. When he entered college he expected to engage in all competitive sports, but his coach soon convinced him that he should become interested in one, track. Dr. Cunningham (left) is shown in conversation with Mr. James E. Blue, principal of Rockford high school, by the show cases situated near the main entrance of the school. He also spoke to various other groups which included Rockford College and Rotary Club.

At the time this picture was taken, the student body of Rockford Senior high school had an exhibit of various hobbies which were appearing in the show-cases near the main entrance. These two students, who are Burdette Douglass, kneeling, and Phyllis Braid, standing, were snapped by the camera as they paused for a moment to regard the unusual display which consisted of several cases of butterflies, women's clothes, and various other amusing and interesting hobbies.

An annual occurence held in the Rockford high school is parents night which prompts interested parents to visit the school and see for themselves the surroundings in which the students work. Teachers welcome the fathers and mothers of their students and discuss with them the progress of their students in which they have a mutual interest. This was taken in Miss Needham's music room as she is making the acquaintance of Elaine Soderquist's mother.

An exhibit of health, sponsored by the Illinois State Medical Association, was held in the Rockford Armory for a week in May, 1939. Pictured are a group of Rockford High School students who as interested spectators are being shown the value and operation of a respirator, sometimes known as an "iron lung." A few of these who are watching are Stuart Johnson, in the background, Jane Hamer, left, William Crawford, center, and Walter Haimes, right.

OFF MOMENTS

For the last time in the history of Rockford High School, the Junior class presented its annual play. This year's play was Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," a Pulitzer Prize winner that had long runs in both New York and Chicago. Given in the Rockford Theater on December 1 and 2, the play had two unusual features in that no scenery and naturally very few stage props were used. Under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Pearson, dramatic coach at Rockford high school, the production proved a success. Ray Nihan, left, played the role of stage-manager. Seated at a supposed soda-fountain are Mary Knutson, who played Emily Webb, and Don Jacobson in the role of George Gibbs.

When the Rockford High School Alumni Association meeting was held in June, 1939, new officers were elected for the coming year. Pictured is the secretary and treasurer, Miss Lena Scandroli, left, Senior high school instructor. Francis Hickey, newly-elected president, is being congratulated upon his election by Burdette Anderson, preceding president, while Mr. James E. Blue, principal of Rockford high school (center), and Mrs. Sigfred Sandeen (right), vice-president of the organization, look on.

In April, 1939, Miss Ruth Buffington, Acting Dean of Rockford College, and Dr. Irving Maurer, President of Beloit College, spoke to an assembly of parents and students on the value of college education, choosing the right college, entering college, and the adjustments necessary for the college student. Shown discussing these college problems are (standing, left to right) Dr. O. A. Crossan, Mrs. Crossan, Dr. Irving Maurer, Dean Ruth Buffington, and Mr. Blue, principal.

During the first month of the school year, September, 1939, new members were initiated into 8-5-3 club at a picnic meeting at Sinnissippi Park. Old and new members played baseball, sang, ate, and enjoyed themselves. All initiates were required to serve dinner to the old members. Among the group standing around a soft drink barrel are new members, Jean Lowe, left; Harriet Ryan, center; Betty Joy Kelly, back; and Joan Perkins, right.

GRADUATION

This happy group of Senior girls who are seen, arm in arm, leaving the Rockford high school as students for the last time include, on the extreme left, Jane Anderson, Roberta Hixson (center), and Mae Floody. All of their good-byes have been said, and the pleasant business of signing their friends' annuals is over. Roberta Anderson, with a camera in hand, has evidently been snapping a picture here and there for a memory of high school days in later years. By the expression on their faces the girls seem to be ready, willing, and able to face anything that may come along. To every one of them, will remain a happy memory of these last Rockford high school days.

These students are seen back of the auditorium eagerly waiting to purchase their tickets to the second football game of the season which was played against Carl Schurz high school, Chicago. Since this was to be the final year of Rockford high school's existence, the pupils took every opportunity to enjoy themselves at the school's sporting events. The boys who are shown selling the tickets are Jack Willoughby (left) and Bill Gorman.

Safe driving is such an important subject that Mr. Max Armstrong, a state highway officer, spoke in the Rockford high school assemblies this year for the fourth consecutive time to explain causes of and cures for accidents. Pictured with Mr. Armstrong after the address are the officers of the Student Safety Council of the school. They include, left, Donn Fowler, co-chairman; Harriett Frisk, co-chairman; Mr. Armstrong; and Betty Duncan, secretary.

Rockford Community Lectures series, sponsored by The Rockford Teachers Club and the American Association of University Women, brought Cornelius Vanderbilt, noted traveler and writer, to Rockford in November. The trio of high school boys shown interviewing Mr. Vanderbilt are Bud Johnson (left), Burdette Douglass (center), and Jon Wagner (right). Mr. Vanderbilt is shown seated in his station wagon from which he is able to broadcast in any part of the world.

IMPROMPTUS

Having come to the climax of three years of work in the high school, this informal gathering of the class of 1939 is seen in their caps and gowns on the steps of the main entrance to the high school for a last get-together. The RHS Annual appears to be the main attraction as Ruth Bjorklund is seen signing some familiar phrase in a friend's annual. Another group on the right includes Carolyn Sandehn (center), and Kenneth Walker, who are looking at pictures which recall pleasant days which were spent in high school. In years to come these, and other students of Rockford High School, when glancing through their Annuals, will recall the delightful days and many friends of RHS.

Mr. Lewis Hoskins (left), television research worker for the Westinghouse laboratories, appeared in a special assembly for upper class boys on January 4. In demonstrating the fundamentals of television, Mr. Hoskins and his assistant projected the image of the face of Robert Stanbery (center) across the stage to a screen, one of the largest of its kind in existence. The demonstration was accompanied by a talk on the possibilities and limitations of commercial television.

This year the social science department sponsored several special assemblies for government students. Mayor Charles F. Brown, a speaker at one of these meetings, described to the students a typical day in the life of a mayor. After the talk, the students were given the opportunity to ask any question of the speaker concerning his talk. Shown with Mayor Brown (left) are Fred Veach (left), Betty Markuson, Billy Campbell, Carol Vetter, and James Beattie (right).

On September 26, the Rockford Teachers club, composed of members from the entire Rockford school system, picnicked at Sinnissippi Park. After the picnic Mr. Irving Pearson, executive secretary of the Illinois Education Association, spoke on the new pension system to the teachers. Superintendent Berg also gave a short talk on "Working Together." In the picture are Mr. Weber (upper left), science department head, Miss Sheetz (lower left), and Miss Erickson, all Senior high school instructors.

INITIATIONS

With the joining of a club, the new member can always look forward to hilarious initiation tricks. These were in progress when this picture was taken at the Forum club initiation. Betty Green and Charles Cibelius are shown as they prepare to race down the coridor on a scooter and kiddy-car, respectively. Jack Willoughby, president of the Forum club, is the starter for the exciting race. Among those looking on while the initiates prepare to go through the ordeal are Jeanne Nelson, Mildred Field, Elizabeth Wing, Pat Wing, Gladys Johnson, Shirley Landgren, Mary Wolcott, and Esther Sumner. After these new members have gone through these embarrassing moments, they are full-fledged members of the club.

Shown examining an outstanding exhibit in the showcase of the main corridor is a quartet of interested students. With the purpose in mind of showing how cheaply books could be purchased, the exhibit was prepared by the ABL club through the help of Miss John, English department head. The girls, who may have in mind starting their own libraries are (left to right) Esther Sumner, Joan Eggers, Betty Harvey, and Betty Holmstrom.

Dr. Mary Ashby Cheek, president of Rockford College, spoke at an assembly for Junior and Senior girls on January 16. Dr. Cheek discussed the advantages of a woman's college over a co-educational school. Among the other advantages, Dr. Cheek explained that a woman's college especially trains for leadership. Shown discussing further with the local college's president (center) are Mr. Blue, principal (left); Betty Holmstrom, Alida Carmichael, and Miss Vincent, senior advisor (right).

SPICE OF LIFE

On January 18, a special assembly was held for Senior and Junior girls. Miss Marjory Rose Gilroy, American Air Lines stewardess, presented an interesting talk entitled, "America Flies." Besides the many human interest stories included in her talk, Miss Gilroy presented informational material which was of interest to girls wishing to become air stewardesses. Not only does an air stewardess have to become a graduate nurse according to Miss Gilroy, but she must also take a special training course covering principles of meteorology, air traffic control, plane construction, and other mechanical details. Among those looking on while Miss Gilroy signs her autograph are (left to right) Alice Johnson, Theresa Bruscato, and Pauline Simonds.

An important feature of the Hi-Y club is the induction of new members. The boys, who are shown presiding over the induction ceremony are, left to right, Bob Millard, Bill Sharp, Dick Conklin, Jack Floden, Eugene Van de Walker, and Charles Cibelius. Bill and Dick are acting as president and chaplain, respectively. The other boys, members of the induction board, have presented short talks on clean speech, clean athletics, clean scholarship, and clean living.

Mr. Arthur Santell, America's strongest athlete, gave an exhibition at Rockford Senior high school on November 27. Mr. Santell gave several feats of strength and skill which were followed by a talk on clean living and health. Pictured in the Aud after the special assembly are Mr. Santell, who in tearing a telephone directory manifests his strength. Amazed student spectators include (left to right) Robert Lindstead and Bob Wood, Jim Murray and Jon Wagner.

ENTERTAINMENT

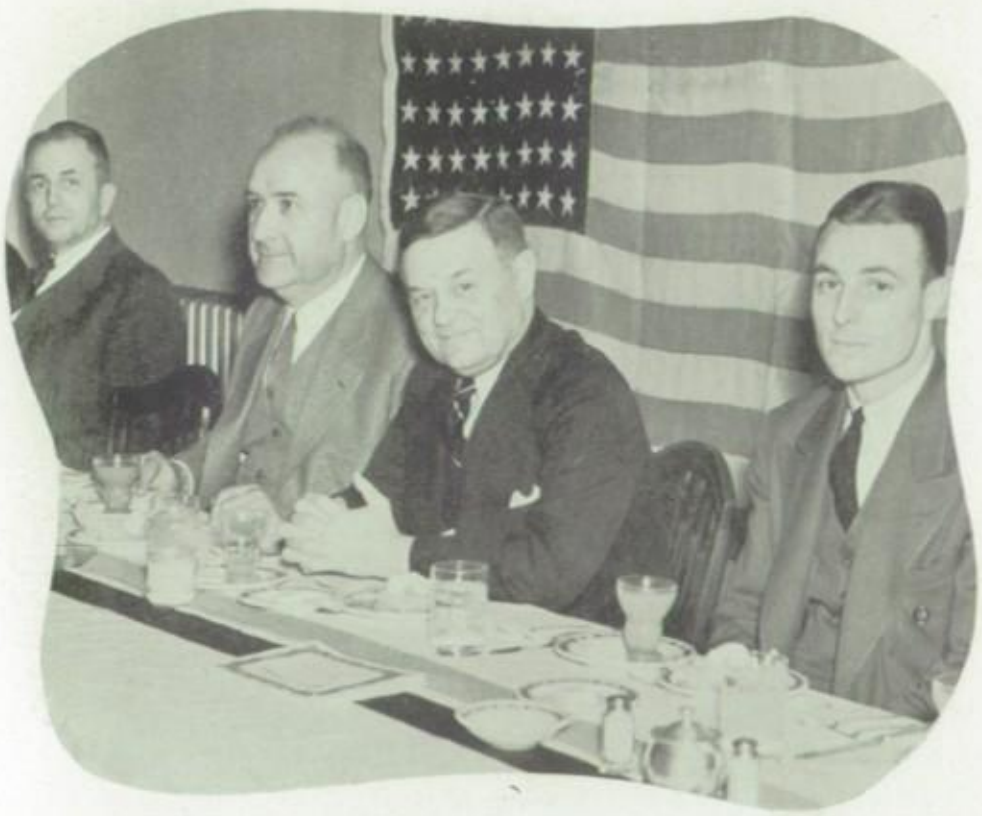
Faculty members of the Social Science department of the Senior high school and their guests met at the Woman's Club Food Shop this year for their Christmas dinner-party which is an annual social event of the department. The instructors drew names and exchanged inexpensive gifts. It appears that the teachers also believe in Santa Claus for the presents were distributed by Mr. Nufer, who was also last year's Saint Nick. After a delicious dinner, the guests enjoyed a social period. While most of the instructors played bridge during this time, there were a few games of the popular Chinese checkers. Shown seated at the banquet table are (left to right) Mr. Froehlich, Mrs. Kiesling, Mr. Nufer, Miss Ollman, and Mrs. Miller.

One of the most outstanding exhibits of the second annual Tri-Y Doll Festival held on December 17, 18, and 19, was the Sophomore project. Ribbons attached to the foreign-clad dolls on the table connected them with their respective countries on the large colored wall map. Shown arranging these dolls for the festival held in the "Y" gym are (left to right), Doris Freer, Shirley Spackman, and Joyce Dost, chairman of the affair.

At a special assembly this year, students of Rockford high school gained information concerning an important subject. A representative from a local meat packing company demonstrated to the student body the different cuts of meat. How to choose meat, how to carve meat, and other interesting and helpful information was also given to the onlookers. Shown at the left after the assembly seeking additional pointers are Don Christophersen, Richard Bornor, and Wesley Carlson.

One of the few social features of the ROTC is the annual Military Hop, held this year on December 15 in the boys' gymnasium. Shown leading the grand march are officers of the Rockford battalion and their sponsors. Left to right are Kay Liddell, Richard Kjellstrom, Captain of Company D; Dorothy Glomp; Richard Yahrmarkt, Captain of Company B; Joan Eggers; Eugene Van de Walker, Captain of Company A; Carol Chandler; and Bill Sterling, Cadet Major.

GRAND MARCH



Rockford high school held its last football banquet in the French room of Schrom's restaurant on December 12. Heavyweight and lightweight football lettermen, student managers, coaches, and special guests of the Rabs attended the dinner. Principal speaker was Coach Robert Zuppke, of the University of Illinois, who was introduced by Attorney Walker Hull, former Illinois student. Coach Beyer acted as toastmaster after Mr. Blue, principal, welcomed the guests. Short talks in honor of the occasion were given by Mr. Carlton Welsh, president of the Board of Education, and Mr. Selmer Berg, superintendent of schools. Seated at the banquet table are (left to right) Mr. Blue, Attorney Hull, Coach Zuppke, and Coach Lowell Spurgeon.

Every year two organizations of Rockford High school may be seen marching in the Armistice Day Parade. These groups are the Band and the ROTC battalion. Shown standing at attention facing east at eleven o'clock is the Rockford High school Band. The ROTC may be seen in the background. The Armistice Day address was given by the Right Reverend George W. Ridgeway, rector of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, who presented a talk on peace in America.

Every month a staff meets in the home of Miss McEvoy, instructor, to publish the "Zoo," a magazine written and edited by the members of the staff. Shown in the picture (left to right) are Jacqueline Magnuson, Jennie Michelon, Phyllis Scheidiger, Ronald Meleng, Bob Carpenter, Betty Sanders, Roger Ryan, Harry Gregerson, Stanton Olson, William Hahn, and Eugene Goldy.

DIVERSIONS

An auxiliary staff in collaboration with editorial staff on RHS annual are the art students who, under the direction of Miss Floy Dentler, contribute their original sketchings for the making of the RHS annual. The art students use as a working model the dummy which the Annual staff uses as its guide. Everything that is not typed or photographed, is done by the art students. Shown working on the dedication page of the 1940 yearbook are (left to right) Robert Anderson, Evert Shostrom, and Wanda Tucker. These students enlarge the drawings in the dummy which are in turn sent to the illustrating company to be photographed. Other members of Miss Floy Dentler's advanced art classes also do this type of work.

This year the student body, as a whole, attended the annual Christmas assembly given in the Armory. On December 21, with Dr. John Gordon as guest speaker, the entire music department presented both morning and evening performances for students and parents respectively. The evening performance was to help defray expenses of the new Hammond organ. The picture, taken from the balcony of the Armory, shows the band, orchestra, and vocal groups of the school.

During the course of the year, the Owl sponsors two reporters' schools for new and old members. At these meetings essentials in news writing are explained and the reporters receive many pointers on how to write news stories and features. Mr. Paul Wollstadt, a former Owl staff member, is shown as he addressed the school reporters. Betty Lucas, Joan Anderson, Merriam Anderson and Alida Carmichael were among reporters at the school.

Each semester at a banquet, the ABL Club initiates new members who are outstanding in their English classes. The initiates are required to put their clothes on inside out and backwards, eat their dinner with their fingers, and then entertain the old members by imitating famous singers or by doing other embarrassing initiation tricks. Virginia Larson, first semester president of the club, is shown marking on Pat Wing's face, while Martha Butler works on Joan Aldrich.

GATHERINGS

Sponsored by Rockford High School Band, the first semi-formal dance of the second semester was held on February 2 in the boys' gym. The gym was decorated in the patriotic colors of red, white, and blue. Ray Essington and Drum Major John Dewey, general chairman of the dance, led the grand march. Music for the dance was furnished by Ralph Williams and his orchestra. Faculty members of the Senior high school and their guests were chaperones at the affair. Pictured as they greet Miss Putnam, dean of girls, are Ray Essington, president of the band and his guest, Harriett Spongberg. Other chaperones are (seated left to right) Miss Scandroli, instructor; Miss Foster, registrar; and Mrs. Isaac Smith.

Managing Editor of the "Argonaut," influential West-coast magazine, Mr. Joseph DuPlain edited the 1933 Owl.

I HAVEN'T been in the editorial rooms of the Rockford high school publications for nearly seven years, but a hundred times, perhaps, I have recalled a small sign which hung on the wall, and which I hope is still there, reading "Take nothing for granted, find out." . . . Journalism today, high school, college, and professional, is a constantly changing field wherein honest thinking and writing will be of the utmost importance in shaping its future. There has been a great deal of slipshod news reporting in the past, as well as a plethora of editorial opinion conspicuous for a lack of sincerity or truthfulness. . . . It is the responsibility of student journalism to further provide a technical training, and, to combat the enervating forces in the outside world by a careful emphasis on the moral issues involved. From the individual point of view, that sign in the Owl room might be re-worded to read: "Take nothing for granted or be found out."

HEADLINERS ★

In every community there are persons who seem to be always in the news. It is they who are the leaders in politics, science, and education, and the rest of the community looks up to them and respects them. To the newspaper man they are the "headliners"—the people who are most often in his headlines. At times a person holds the public attention for a short while, but to be a true headliner one must do something for which he will long be respected or remembered.

A school's headliners are its leaders in scholarship, popularity, and character. They may be conspicuous figures, such as class officers, or they may be students who work quietly, winning some other type of honor. No matter to which type they belong, the headliners are the ones who have given RHS its reputation and in this last division we shall recognize them.

STUDENT COUNCIL

As the name implies, the student council serves the student body by referring their problems to the faculty. The group adds to the school social life by sponsoring evening parties, but also takes charge of collecting money from the students for the Goodfellows' Christmas baskets. In this picture are Nygren, Cuppini, Johnson, Borst, Block, Rassh, Tholin, Lindquist, Miller, Fritz, Secrest, and Gustafson, members.

The 10A's, aided by Harriet Bergren, council secretary, are shown discussing council projects. At first, the council consisted of a boys' and girls' group, but Mr. Paul Conklin, former assistant principal, merged them into one group, for which Miss Putnam was appointed adviser. Shown (left to right) are Jackson, Tolmie, Arnold, Hancock, Plummer, Gustafson, Morgan, Bergren, Clark, Bradley, Fehler, De Marlo, Garst, Cushincy, Lindquist, Sampson, Root, and Lindquist.

Athletic Board of Control is composed of faculty and council members. Their chief task is discussing the awarding of letters. The board consists of (left to right) Mr. Lundahl, assistant principal; Mr. Laude, coach; Eugene Speck, heavyweight basketball captain; Bill Joslyn, Bill Lyddon; Campbell Perks, heavyweight football captain; Mr. Bailey; Mr. Beyer, physical education director; Mr. Blue, principal; Billie Henard, and Margaret Lindquist.

At one of the student council gatherings held during the year, the 11A and 11B student council members are shown (right) with Bill Lyddon, vice-president, presiding. Members are (front row) Lyddon, Anderson, Wallin, Carlson, Schmaling, Lucas, Shaver, and Pedlow; (middle row) Peterson, Anderson, Carlson, Cutting, Hammond, Funnell, Greenberg, Ramsey, and Kasper; (back row) Tuckett, Norton, Jacobson, Garrison, Carberry, Reynolds, Carter, Leigh, Black, Trefz, and Brophy.

The Organization Board is also an important committee of the student council. The members of this committee, who keep the file of the officers of all school organizations, are responsible for keeping the records of the school honor point system. Donald Carlson, Jaqueline Arnold, Gladys Johnson, members of the board, with Miss Knill and Miss Putnam, advisers, are pictured checking honor points.

At Christmas time the student council usually directs the preparation of the home room baskets. Since Christmas vacation began too early for the collection of food this year, money for the Good Fellows was collected. Jack Floden, (left) president; Harriet Bergren, secretary; Bill Joslyn, treasurer; and Miss Putnam, adviser, are shown presenting approximately three hundred dollars to Paul Wollstadt, Goodfellow representative.

NATIONAL HONOR

Dr. Irving F. Maurer, president of Beloit College, addressed the newly elected members of the National Honor Society at the annual induction on May 23. Mr. Blue, principal, spoke of the qualifications necessary for membership in the society. Miss Putnam, who is the club sponsor, introduced the new members to Mr. Blue and the students who witnessed the induction during three consecutive assemblies.

After eligible students have been voted upon by their classmates, the Faculty Elective Council makes the final selection considering service, leadership, and character. Shown left are (back row) Meyer, Hallock, Floden, Mulford, Marcellus, Grip, Ginstrom, Morgan, Landgren, Meier, Miner, Kazmierski, Heins, McLain, Hughes, Hagerstrom, Keegan, Johnston, Gill, Harvey, Larson, Lindquist, Peterson, Murphy. Others are (front row) Gullotta, Gleichman, Merrill, Johnson, Paulson, Milburn, Handel, Hoisington, and Picci.

On Tuesday, May 23, newly elected members were inducted into the National Honor Society, during an impressive ceremony witnessed by students and parents of the initiates. Included in this picture are Finch, Carlson, DiRaimondo, Berg, Clancy, Cibelius, Coretz, DiGiovanni, Bailey, Douglass, R. Anderson, Janet A. Anderson, R. Carlson, Danielsen, H. Carlson, H. Anderson, Curtis, John Anderson, Dailey, Goodell, Cook, Janet E. Anderson, Conklin, L. Anderson, Beckington, Arbogast, Cotta, and Gale.

HONORARY MUSICAL

Because Miss Hollem, English instructor and charter member of Pi Kappa Lambda, National Honorary Fraternity, thought that talented musicians in Rockford high school were not receiving the recognition they deserved, she organized the Honorary Musical Society. Shown around the piano are the second semester officers of the organization. They are (left to right) Dorothy Glomp, piano; Joy Kelly, piano; and Richard Kjellstrom, violin.

Outstanding alumni of the Honorary Musical Society are Mrs. Alice Koontz, violinist; Mrs. Alice Marie Bodenhorn, 'cellist; and Henry Coretz, violinist. Pictured around the piano are present active members of the society. They are (left) Irene Lutzhoff, piano; Joy Kelly, piano; Robert Larson, voice; Phyllis Braid, voice; Ted Colehour, clarinet; Joan Perkins and Margaret Price (right) both vocalists. Other members are Ray Norlander and William Bargren.

QUILL AND SCROLL

Part of the average student's life is spent in the school library and with high school athletes there is no exception to this rule. Shown taking advantage of the opportunity as an aid in their school work are several members of the National Athletic Scholarship Society (seated) Phil Alongi (left), Bernard Chirvinski, Bob Rosecrance, and Wayne Otto; (standing) Don Busch (left), and Kore Plomas.

In addition to their places in fields of sport, regular school subjects are pursued by these National Athletic Scholarship Society members of the heavyweight football and golf teams. Shown seated are Jim Shelden (left), Victor Pizzuto, Ralph Williford, and Bob Stanbery; (standing) Lawrence Ferolie (left), Phil Marcellus, captain of the golf team; Cam Perks, captain of the last heavyweight football squad in the Central High.

Athletic award winners exemplifying the highest type of citizenship and sportsmanship whose average in school work is higher than that of the general average of the school are qualified for admission into the National Athletic Scholarship Society. Basketball and track qualifiers are (seated) Vic Anucauskas (left), Joe Gebbia, Bob Wood, and Dan Hill; (standing) Wayne Minett (left), Bob Gustafson, John Palm, James Palm, and Eugene Speck.

ATHLETIC SOCIETY

Celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the annual Publications banquet occurred April 13 in the cafeteria. Mr. Franklin M. Reck, managing editor of the American Boy magazine and a former Owl editor, delivered the main address of the evening on "Fun in Journalism." Shown at the banquet are Betty Nordvall, editorial board member; Burton Johnson, toastmaster and business manager; Mrs. Reck, and Mr. Reck.

Quill and Scroll initiates, chosen for outstanding journalistic ability and scholarship, were admitted to the society at the dinner. Edward Nell, executive secretary of the organization, and George Foster, business manager in 1939, officiated at the induction with alumni members present. New members (left to right): Elizabeth Wing, Richard Conklin, Betty Nordvall, Gladys Wallin, Ray Goetz, Bill Mackey, and Don Olson, are shown with Mr. Nell and George Foster.

Former editors and staff members, faculty members, parents of staff officials, and staff members and their guests, were among those present at the dinner. Each decade was represented by a publication alumnus in a short toast to commemorate the paper's long history. Shown discussing their programs at one of the dinner tables are Miss Putnam, Miss Dilley, Miss Carlson, Miss Vincent, Elizabeth and Pat Wing.

LEADERS

So that newswriting students may gain actual experience in interviewing prospective advertisers and writing advertising copy, each year the Rockford newspapers sponsor a special section in which are published student-written ads for various local firms. Readers are then asked to vote for the advertisements they consider most attractive. Alida Carmichael and Harold Todd, shown looking through the edition, were the writers of the most popular ads.

Chosen by a joint Legion and faculty committee, co-winners of the 1939 American Legion cup, awarded for scholarship and athletic achievement, were Vito Lopin, swimming captain, and Robert Wallin, basketball center. ABL cup went to Doris Williams who was named by a faculty committee for her scholarship and service. Captain Charles Tucker was chosen by fellow cadets to add his name to Charles Sowle Citizenship plaque.

Winners in a poster contest sponsored by the Junior play publicity committee were chosen by a committee composed of Mr. Burlend, Miss Mary Brown, and Miss Vera Hunter. Those who made winning posters with the members of the publicity committee are (left to right) Charles Furman; Elizabeth Hebert, second place; Clyde Saltzgiver, first place; Carolyn Lace, third place; Esther Sumner, publicity chairman; Eunice Bearsley, and Frances Gibler.

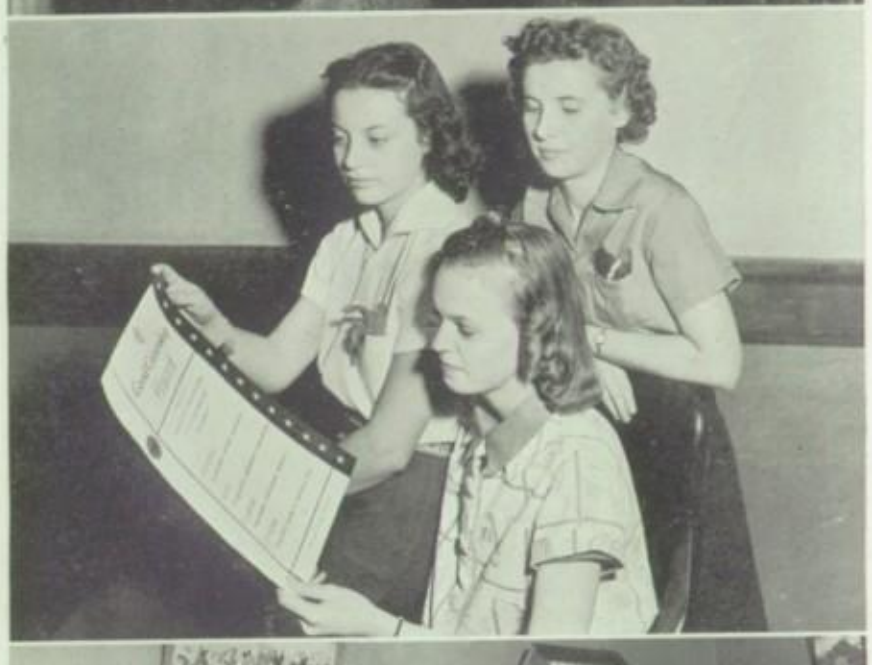
LEADERS

Of ten national winners in an editorial writing contest sponsored by the Quill and Scroll society, Henry Broquist of Rockford High was one. Henry, whose subject was "Why Not a United States of Europe?" is shown (left) reading his letter of congratulation from the society. Richard Conklin (right) received honorable mention in a current events contest which was also sponsored by the Quill and Scroll.

Annually the DAR sponsors an election in the Senior home rooms whereby a Senior girl is chosen to represent the school in a state-wide drawing, the winner of which is given a trip to the national capital. The three girls who received the highest number of votes in Rockford high are (left to right) Elizabeth Wing; Marion Arbogast, winner of first place; and Mildred Ross. Qualities considered are service, dependability, leadership, and patriotism.



At the beginning and end of each semester, English students are given tests which determine the scope of their vocabulary. Barbara Merrill (left), Ray Goetz, Gordon Tullock, Keith Johnson, Janet E. Anderson, William Hall, and Richard Miner (right) were the students in Senior classes who received the highest ratings. Gordon Tullock led the group with a score of 139 out of a possible 150 points.

In April an oratorical contest for sophomores and 11B's was held in which the orations used were chosen by students from prize winning college oratorical contests. Among the Sophomore students who won in the finals were Alida Carmichael (left) second prize winner, who received a book; Mr. Froehlich, sophomore debate coach, is shown handing the first prize award, a trophy, to Barbara Caldwell.

Shown with Mr. Burlend, debate coach, are the finalists of the Junior Oratorical contest. Left to right are Robert Braisted, who discussed slums; Leon Rosenzweig, who spoke on twentieth century medievalism; Mr. Burlend; William Hahn, who talked about the Constitution; and Phillip Nicolosi, who took up the problems of accidents and carelessness. Preliminaries for the contest were held February 26, with Miss Terrell judging.

Surveying a road map prior to their departure for the nineteenth Illinois state high school press association convention held at the University of Illinois in Urbana on March 1 and 2, are several publication staff members: Bill Mackey (left), Joyce Plummer, Lucy McAllister, Jon Wagner, Miss Obye (adviser) and Don Olson. The convention featured many round table discussions of publication activities and problems.

Shown proceeding to her throne through an archway made by other candidates, is Barbara Lund, 1939 May Queen. The RHS Annual sponsors the coronation which is followed by a dance. Students who buy tickets to the dance elect the queen from three candidates, elected by school vote from a field of ten candidates among whom are (left to right) Kathleen Dahlgren, Peg McCarthy, and Frances McCanna.

Miss Dilley, acting head of the English department, is shown pinning a gold medal on Marian Mabee, first place winner of the spelling contest sponsored by the English department. Margaret Bates (left), third place winner, and Dorothy Arbogast (right), second place, look on. This final contest was held in the WROK studios March 18, after a series of elimination contests at the high school.

For the first time this year, awards were presented to ROTC cadets outstanding in military skill, leadership, service and scholarship. Designed by Jacqueline Magnuson, a high school student, the medals were awarded by the Rockford Morning Star and Register-Republic. Pictured examining sketches of the medals are (left to right) Mr. Blue, principal; Jacqueline; Mr. Barney Thompson, editor of the papers; and Colonel Pell.

Since circulation balances only a very small percentage of the total expenditures of a publication, other means must be found to finance it. The Annual owes a great deal to the various clubs, the athletic association, and the Junior and Senior classes for their contributions for pages in the annual. Even with the help of school groups, however, the support of the merchants of the city is essential in maintaining the annual's high standards.

The staff of the 1940 RHS Annual is also indebted to the Bliss Printing Company, the Rockford Typesetting Company, and the Rockford Illustrating Company, printers and engravers; the North American Press, covers; and Herzog Studios, Ros-Mor Studios, and Waldsmith Commercial Studios, photography. The staff also appreciates greatly the indispensable work of Miss Dentler's art classes in lettering and sketching for the book. The cooperation of all groups in and out of school has given to Rockford high school All-American and Medalist annuals in national ratings year after year.

New Economy Lathes...

...For The New High Schools

Checking an Economy Lathe for Alignment

Soon these brand new Economy Lathes will take their places in the machine shops of Rockford's two beautiful new high schools. Students can thrill with pride and enthusiasm when assigned to an Economy Lathe . . . a regular standard, full-size, commercial machine; identical with those used widely in the shops of industry, as well as in hundreds of colleges, trade schools and high schools. Economy Lathes are practical, simple, durable; have an extra measure of safety; are priced within the range of average school budgets.

Hy-Draulic Reciprocating Machine Tools, made by Rockford Machine Tool Co., will also be represented in the machine shop equipment of the new high schools. Thus the students can become acquainted with the use of hydraulic drives and feeds in machine tools, a steadily growing modern development.

Dear Helen ——.

To begin with, it has been nice going around with you. I must admit that we didn't hang around together very much until we got into the 11A class, but since then it's been swell.

One thing we have in common is that we are the only two Italian girls in our semester class. all the rest of the girl, some of which I miss a great deal, either had to go to work or they couldn't take it. But we ah! ah! had the right stuff in us to struggle on through these few years of "prison".

Now Hel — you better not forget the delightful times we have had in the cafeteria. talking nonsense most of the time or talking our worth while jokes. Some of them weren't so bad, were they???

It won't be so bad going to the other school because since we have to be like 10B' the time will go by fast. I'm sure I'll see you again then!

(Hug's Hugging)
Angie Giangiunto

Dear Helen,

I'm sorry we never were in any classes together other than Todds I when we learned to make white sauce. It was fun wasn't it? May the living be easy and you reach your highest goal. Hope to see you in the future.

Best of luck.
